Arabs pull plug on Canada

Times News Services

The Arab Monetary Fund (AMF) has stopped all dealings with Canada because of its plan to move the Canadian embassy to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv, the fund chairman announced today in Bahrain, capital of the United Arab Emirates.

"No more deposits will be placed with Canadian banks, whether they are off-shore banks in Bahrain, on the Euro-market or anywhere else," Jawad Hashem told Reuters news agency by telephone.

The decision was blamed for pushing the Canadian dollar below the 85-cent U.S. level on New York money markets today.

The Canadian dollar opened at 84.85 cents U.S., rallied to 84.96 on a small burst of commercial buying in mid-morning trading, and steadied at the same level by noon. Monday's close was 85.25.

The dollar had been maintaining a fairly steady level since the May 22 election, only dropping below 85 cents U.S. after the release of poor merchandise trade figures at the beginning of the month.

Hashem said the AMF, an Arab League body, will have no foreign-exchange dealings with Canadian financial institutions.

There will be no trading in Canadian bonds or bonds issued through Canadian banks, he added.

"This is a management decision, effective today," he said.

Hashem said he withdrew all AMF funds before making the decision public.

Hashem declined to reveal the amount of AMF investments.

"This is secret," he said. "But with $1-billion capital you can well imagine the extent of our dealings."

Earlier this month, nine Arab states warned the new Progressive Conservative government of Prime Minister Clark against implementing his election pledge to move the embassy.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald has said there is no timetable or deadline for the move and the government will consider all aspects of the question before acting.

There are three Canadian banks in Dubai, the second-richest state in the United Arab Emirates.

It's summertime . . . with kids starting to drink

By ALAN JAY

VANCOUVER (UPC) — "I took a deep breath and lifted the razor. I slashed at both wrists several times and the blood was everywhere. I was crying and screaming at the same time. . .it was terrible."

Karen's quietly-spoken words seem incongruous in the peaceful, summer setting of a children's park in English Bay. The bright sunlight turns her curly blonde hair to gold, and unshed tears sparkle in her eyes as she described her seven attempts to kill herself by slashing her wrists.

"Life was one long, nightmare," she says, trying not to cry. "I was drinking anything I could find every chance I got and I was getting drunk two and three times a week.

"It got so bad that I slashed my wrists over and over again. I didn't really want to die, I guess, because I never did a good job of it. I just wanted to know that someone cared about me."

The tears stream down her face as she shows me her wrists. They are laced with fine, white scars. When she put them there, Karen was 16 years old.

The nightmare began, she says, with harmless visits to the beach, friends' houses and the local park with her closest friends from school.

"Someone always brought along the beer, and although I didn't like it at first, I drank it because everyone else did," she says. "None of the girls had much money, but the boys had part-time jobs, so they were always able to afford to buy beer."

The drinking parties went on throughout the summer, but while most of her friends stayed sober, Karen got drunk. Soon, she was getting drunk two and three times a week, she recalls.

Most of the time, she managed to sneak home without her parents seeing her, she says, although her father "came on heavy" from time to time about her staying out late.

"But after a while, even he saw that I was getting drunk all the time," Karen recalls. "But then he had a drinking problem himself and drank more than I did. And my mother was too busy looking after him to bother about me."

Finally, she started staying out all night, and then for several days at a time. She slept at friends' homes "or wherever I passed out."

It was after this, in moments of screaming desperation, that she started slashing her wrists, she says.

In a voice choked with emotion, she describes how the nightmare ended and she took the first step in what she calls "the long road back" one morning when she looked in a mirror.

"I was in the bathroom, clinging to the door. I looked up - and there was this horror staring back at me from the mirror. I started to scream - and then the truth hit me," she says.

"'My God,' I told myself, 'I am an alcoholic. . .and I'm only 16 years old !'"

For Karen, it was the beginning of a two-year uphill battle to stop drinking and return her life to normal. She called Alcoholics Anonymous for help - "the first smart move I had made in a long time."

Today, Karen has conquered her drinking problem. She lives in a foster home and has a part-time job in a store. Her plans for the future include a return to school - "to catch up on those two lost years" - and a career which involves working with children. She has remained a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, attends meetings and works on a voluntary basis with teen-agers fighting problems similar to her own.

Joan, the one person who didn't walk away from her during the nightmare years, is still a friend and Karen values her friendship highly. "She and I are now building a whole new relationship, and life is good these days," she says, smiling for the first time since the interview began.

One of these days, she says as she gathers up her things, she will try to repair the damaged relationship wth her parents and family, "but that may take a while."

And she shrugs, somewhat sadly, as she turns and walks slowly away through the groups of noisy, playing children towards the beach.

Next month, Karen will be among the 1,800 delegates gathering in Vancouver for the 22nd International Conference of Young People in Alcoholics Anonymous.

She will take part in a key conference debate on "Young problem drinkers - where can they find help?"

Somoza battles for slum

MANAGUA (AP) — The forces of President Anastasio Somoza battled for Managua's slums today and tried to check a guerrilla army in southern Nicaragua, leaving the Sandinista rebels in control of major towns in the northwest part of the country.

The president said the national guard will fight until it crushes the rebels waging their second offensive in 10 months to end 42 years of Somoza family rule. But he conceded it will take longer than the two weeks he predicted more than a week ago.

Guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front on Monday completed their occupation of Leon, Nicaragua's second-largest city 88 kilometres north of Managua, and were reported by persons in Chinandega, Chichigalpa and Esteli to be holding most of those three other cities in the northwest.

The Sandinistas also said they were in control of Matagalpa, about 130 kilometres northeast of Managua, but there was no confirmation of this.

Police shoot prowler

PUBLICITY PICTURE for a sci-fi horror movie called I Was a One-Eyed Teen-aged Superhog from Outer Space? No, face at the window belongs to an elephant, waiting to be unloaded from a van to perform at the Shrine Circus, which opened at the Memorial Arena Monday and continues today.

One man was shot and a man and woman taken into custody after a Central Saanich police officer surprised three prowlers in a cleaning store in Brentwood late Monday night.

Central Saanich police chief Bob Miles said in a brief statement today the wounded man was taken to Victoria General Hospital.

The man's condition is not known but it is believed he was hit in the chest by at least one of four bullets fired by an officer.

The man and a woman have been charged with breaking into Fay's Brentwood One-Hour Cleaning at 7183 West Saanich with intent to commit theft.

No other details were released but an employee of the cleaning store said an officer on patrol in the area shortly before midnight noticed a door at the back of the store had been broken and then spotted three persons inside.

She said when the officer challenged the trio to come out, one of the men held up an object which the officer took to be a weapon.

The officer told the man to drop the object and when he didn't the officer fired four shots.

It is not known how many bullets struck the man, but one was believed to have hit him in the chest.

The store employee said one of the bullets went through the store.

Big Hydro spending

B.C. Hydro will spend approximately $106 million in the Victoria area over the next five years, a spokesman for the power authority said today.

G.J. Roper, manager of Hydro's Vancouver Island division, told Victoria's central business advisory committee that well over $100 million will be spent on increased plant and facilities.

Health probe to begin even if Indian boycott

Health Minister Bob McClelland says a public inquiry into health care in Alert Bay will go ahead Wednesday in a more suitable location despite a planned boycott by Indian bands in the area.

"I'm concerned that the Indians will boycott the inquiry because the seven-member inquiry panel will not be able to do such a good job without them," McClelland said Monday.

He said it would not be wise to put off the inquiry as suggested by Harry Rankin, the Vancouver lawyer who will represent the Indians at the inquiry.

The Kwawkewlth Tribal Council, which represents 18 bands with 3,500 members north of Campbell River, said it would refuse to participate in the three-day inquiry as it is now constituted.

A spokesman said the Indians were appalled the seven-member public inquiry was to be held in the 15-person capacity administration offices of St. George's Hospital at Alert Bay, 200 miles north of Victoria.

The spokesman also said the Indians were "utterly dismayed" no effort was made by inquiry chairman Dr. Charles Ballam to officially notify the band of the hearing's terms of reference.

"A more suitable location will be provided for the inquiry so all members of the public can be adequately heard," said McClelland.

"I'll assure them of that. If the administration offices of the hospital are not big enough, then we will find a building that is."

Meanwhile, Ballam said he is going to Alert Bay today to find a suitable location for the hearing.

The inquiry follows the death of Renee Smith, an 11-year-old Indian girl, who died Jan. 22 in St. George's Hospital five days after being given pain-killing pills to ease severe stomach aches.

A coroners' jury nearly two weeks ago found that Dr. Jack Pickup, the only doctor in the area, was negligent in the death and that health care in the community was substandard.

The girl died of severe general peritonitis, ruptured appendix and acute gangrenous appendicitis.

IWA walkouts hit Island sites

Nearly 1,500 forest industry employees in the Lake Cowichan area were off the job today as woodworkers began putting the heat on their negotiators to get a contract settlement.

Scattered illegal walkouts began last week and escalated Monday when several hundred were off the job protesting against the pace of negotiations.

Both union and company spokesmen agree that such walkouts are a traditional feature at this stage of the forest industry negotiations.

All today's walkouts were by Vancouver Island members of the International Woodworkers of America.

Pickets appeared on roads leading to logging sites and sawmills in the Lake Cowichan area and the workers refused to cross, shutting down about six operations.

About 100 loggers at MacMillan Bloedel's Northwest Bay division remained off the job today after walking out Monday.

An IWA spokesman said the picketing is not sanctioned by union officials.

He said the workers are getting tired of never having a new contract when the last one expired June 14.

"They want to get their money and start spending it," he said.

Meanwhile, an IWA spokesman in Vancouver said today that after a rough day Saturday, negotiations are now back on the track.

He said Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agent for the companies, agreed to discuss improvements to the union pension plan.

The hang-up previously had been that the companies were not prepared to discuss such improvements until the IWA agreed to unify the union's pension plan with that of the two other forest industry unions — the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada.

Now, however, the spokesman said the companies have agreed to discuss improvements without the added condition.

The spokesman said the IWA is not totally opposed to unifying the plans but didn't want that as a condition for improving the IWA plan.

Europe allows DC-10s to fly

Times News Services

ZURICH — The first of Europe's 58 DC-10s began flying again today after European countries adopted new inspection and maintenance programs for the grounded jetliners.

But they still will not be allowed to land in the United States which grounded all DC-10s following last month's crash in Chicago.

The first back in the air was a DC-10 of the Dutch charter carrier Martinair. It flew to Palma de Majorca, the Spanish Mediterranean holiday island, shortly after midnight European time.

Swissair readied a DC-10 for a flight to Tel Aviv this afternoon, provided authority arrived in time from Athens for overflying Greek airspace.

Switzerland and the Netherlands were the first to give the go-ahead for resumption of flights Monday, followed today by France, Spain and the Nordic Civil Aviation Administration. The West German transport ministry said new certification is being issued for Lufthansa's 11 DC-10s later today.

Britain gave the green light to Laker Airways and British Caledonian and both said they will resume DC-10 flights Wednesday — Laker to Crete, British Caledonian to Nigeria.

Because DC-10s remain grounded in the United States, Laker still cannot use any of its six DC-10s for its cut-price flights to the U.S.

A Swissair spokesman said the company's nine DC-10's underwent a final round of checks during the night which cleared them for service.

France's leading private airline, UTA, said it would put three of its six DC-10s back in the air tonight to serve Africa, the Far East and the Pacific. The other three DC-10s serve the United States and cannot be flown until the lifting of the U.S. grounding order.

Spanish aviation officials said today that Iberia, the Spanish airline, can return its seven DC-10s to service any time it wants.

In Edmonton, Wardair Canada said it hopes its two DC-10s will be allowed to fly this week.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government said it will not allow Japan Air Lines (JAL) to resume DC-10 flights until the U.S. authorities rescind their grounding order.

Newfies give PCs bigger margin

Times News Services

ST. JOHN'S — The Liberal Party's hopes for revival have gone begging with the resounding victory by Premier Brian Peckford's Progressive Conservatives Monday in the Newfoundland provincial election.

Former external affairs minister Don Jamieson, who had come home from Ottawa to lead the provincial Liberal Party, conceded defeat only an hour after the polls closed. There are now no Liberal governments in office in Canada.

The New Democratic Party, which had hoped to capitalize on an increased popular vote in the May federal election, did not elect any members. Provincial NDP Leader John Greene was defeated by a Tory in St. John's West.

Final standings compared to the 1975 provincial election were:

	1979	1975
PC	33	30
Lib	19	16
Lib Reform	—	4
Ind Lib	—	1
Total	52	51

The Conservatives won slightly more than 50 per cent of the popular vote with the Liberals taking just under 40 per cent. The NDP doubled its popular vote from four to eight per cent.

About 236,000 or 73 per cent of the 323,000 eligible voters voted.

Premier Brian Peckford, 36, who has led the party for only three months, stressed provincial autonomy in the campaign, and saw his victory as the dawning of "a new political day" for Newfoundland.

"I am deeply sorry that I let you down, Jamieson, 58, told dejected party workers, adding that he would stay on as party leader.

Jamieson, who took the Burin-St. Georges seat in the May 22 federal election, said he had turned in his resignation from federal politics.

Senator Al Graham, national president of the Liberal Party, says he is not discouraged by election results: "We are in the throes of a new beginning in the party from one end of the country to the other."

Former Newfoundland premier Joey Smallwood stayed out of the election other than to campaign for his son, Bill, who lost to a Tory in Port De Grave constituency.

'Black' corner strikes again

The intersection at Johnson and Cook lived up to its notorious reputation Monday night.

The spot, the scene of numerous traffic accidents, recorded two separate, two-vehicle collisions within a three and a half hour span.

There were no injuries in either of the mishaps.

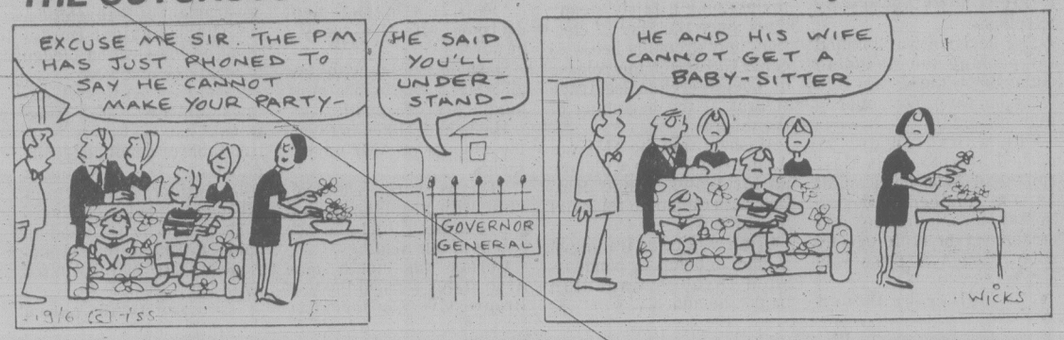

In the first, at 5:35 p.m., Gordon Vickery, 36, of 229 Woodlong Crescent and Gordon Leach, 29, of 206-715 Vancouver emerged unscathed after Vickery's car struck a light standard and collided with Leach's vehicle.

In the second accicdent at 8:43 p.m. about $1,800 damage was done to two vehicles, one driven by Bruce Routley, 24, of Calgary and the other by Bruce Mitchell, 19, of 1245 St. David.

A city police spokesman said the intersection has been the scene of numerous accidents.

He said Black Spot warning signs were posted at the four corners some time time ago.

Hydro profits jump $49M

B.C. Hydro made a profit of $49 million for the year ended March 31 even though it lost $61 million on passenger transportation, says the utility's annual report tabled in the B.C. legislature Monday.

However, the government-owned giant now has a $5.1 billion debt compared with $4.7 billion a year ago.

The company said record sales volumes and peak demands in both electric and gas operations resulted in record revenues of $904 million. That figure includes $34 million earned by selling gas to the U.S.

Hydro's capital and operating expenditures totalled $1.58 billion. Its expenditures included a $33.9 million out-of-court settlement reached last August for claims made in a dispute over construction of the underground powerhouse at the W. A. C. Bennett dam.

Hydro was ordered to pay $36 million to contractor Morris Knudsen in March, 1976, for fundamental breach of contract. Hydro appealed and the B.C. Court of Appeal ruled in its favor.

In turn, Knudsen appealed. The case was on its way to the Supreme Court of Canada when the settlement was reached.

Of its $5.1 billion in outstanding bonds and debentures, 72 per cent is in Canadian dollars and the remainder is in U.S. dollars.

The report said all long-term borrowings have sinking fund provisions to ensure that money is available at maturity to repay a portion of the debt. As of March 31, these sinking funds totalled $356 million.

A total of $477 million in Canadian funds was borrowed during the year with $425 million coming from pension funds under the control of the B.C. government and $52 million from the Canada Pension Plan investment fund.

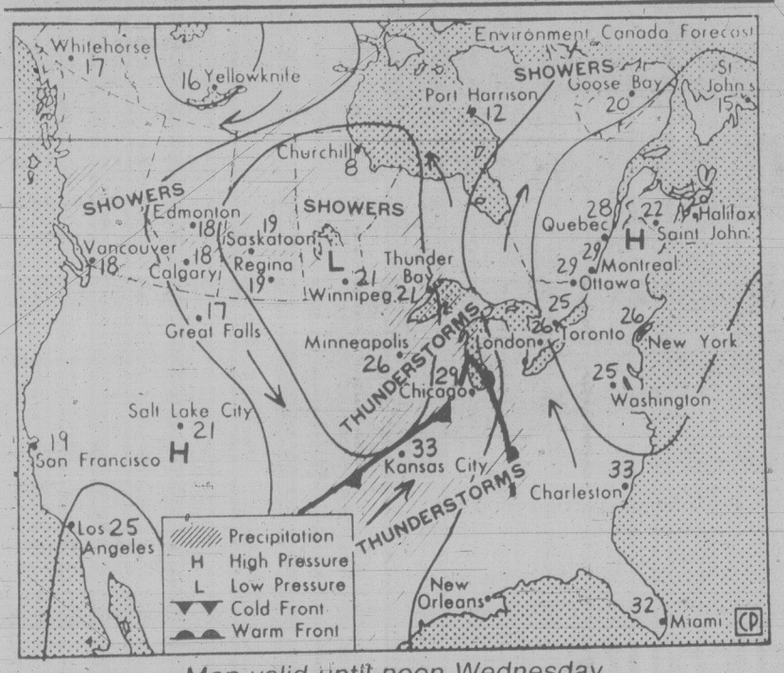

Hydro spent $722 million on construction during the year compared with $641 million in the previous year. Construction work included the Peace Canyon, Revelstoke and Seven Mile power projects.

Revenues from the electric service were $669 million, up 9.7 per cent. The increase reflected higher sales volume in B.C. and rate increases for all customers last March and April, the report says.

Revenues from the sale of gas were $170 million, up 25.2 per cent. The $34 million increase was attributed to a colder winter weather and more customers.

However, Hydro's buses lost $61 million, about the same loss as in the year before. Buses collected $43 million in fares, an increase of 15.2 per cent due to higher fares.

Well-known James Bay grocer dies

Native Victorian W.D. Stuart Smith, 85, a grocer for 60 years in James Bay, died Saturday at his home at 405 Vancouver Street.

Funeral service will be Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. in McCall's chapel, Rev. Canon W.E. Greenhalgh officiating.

Smith's father was owner of the Windsor Grocery on Government, opposite the post office and Stuart became manager of a Smith's Grocery branch at Menzies and Simcoe, where he remained until his retirement 10 years ago.

For many years Smith was known in musical circles as a pianist who played for silent films, with dance orchestras and with Billy Tickle.

He was a member of Vancouver-Quadra Lodge, AM and FM, No. 2 BCR, Royal Arch, Perceptory and Victoria Shrine Club Gizeh Temple, and founder of its clown unit.

He is survived by his wife Mae, daughters Gerry and Marilyn, sons-in-law Ray and Ed, grandchildren Brad and Shawn, a sister and two brothers.

A global campaign against tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Califano, U.S. secretary of health, education and welfare, called today for a global campaign to end the "epidemic" of cigarette smoking by the year 2015.

If it works, "ours will become a healthier world; people will suffer fewer untimely deaths; levels of disability and chronic illness in all our countries will drop sharply," he said in a speech to the Fourth World Conference on Smoking and Health in Stockholm.

The speech was released in advance here.

He said the United States has turned the tide against smoking, starting with the first surgeon-general's report on smoking in 1964. The percentage of Americans who smoke peaked a year earlier at 53 per cent of men and 33 per cent of women, and has fallen since.

And new interest in quitting the habit has been spurred by the updated surgeon-general's report issued Jan. 11, Califano said.

Califano said a new survey of women found the percentage of smokers fell in the first three months of this year to 28 per cent from 30 per cent. The rate for men held steady at 37 per cent.

He also reported a temporary surge in the number of regular smokers who reported trying to quit the habit in past months. From four per cent at the end of 1978, the rate climbed to 6.2 per cent during the two-week period surrounding release of the report and reached almost 10 per cent in late January and early February, Califano said.

But a month later, the percentage had retreated to the four-per-cent range, Califano said, adding: "We cannot yet tell whether those who attempted to quit in such large numbers will have long-range success."

Tanker reaches harbor safely

CHATHAM, Mass (AP) — A damaged 180-metre-long oil tanker steamed into Boston Harbor today with the crew of a Liberian freighter that sank after the two ships collided off Cape Cod.

U.S. Coast Guard officials said the 174-metre-long Liberian freighter Regal Sword, loaded with scrap iron, went down 48 kilometres east of here shortly after 7 p.m. Monday, about 90 minutes after its starboard hull was slashed by the bow of the Exxon Chester.

The 38 crew members aboard the Regal Sword took to lifeboats and were picked up by the tanker. There were no reports of injuries.

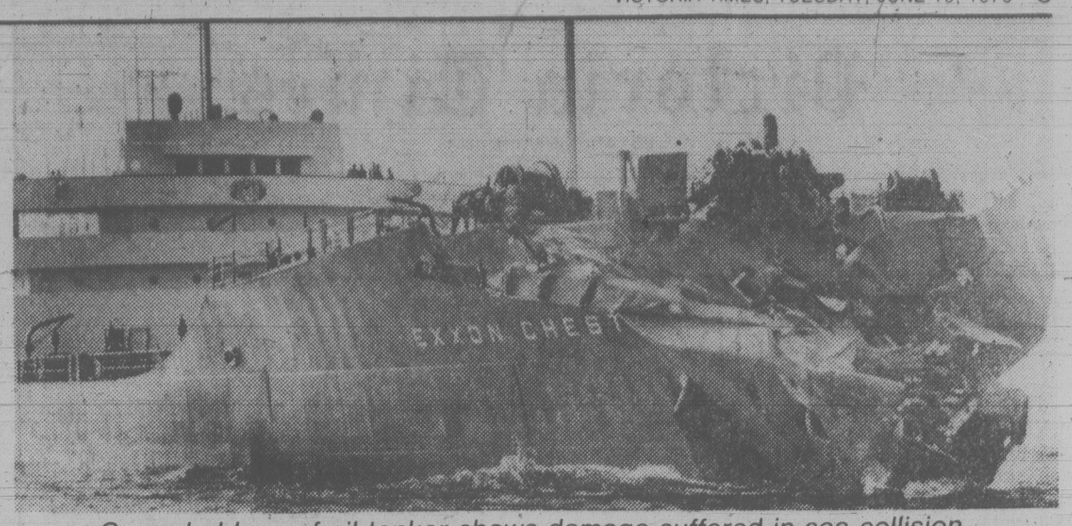

The coast guard said a formal investigation of the accident will open Wednesday.

"You'd have to say those are 38 men who are lucky to be alive," Coast Guard Lt. Joseph Dunkin said.

The area was shrouded in "patchy fog," but visibility was reported to be one-half mile at the time of the collision, officials said.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the Exxon Chester ripped a 150-foot-long gash in the freighter's starboard stern. The tanker suffered only "superficial damage" to its bow, and its cargo tanks were undamaged, he said.

The Exxon Chester was escorted into port by the cutter Cape Cross.

People

'. . . . every puff taken is a blow for liberty!'

From two distinguished members of the British forces, a clarion call to smokers went out Monday from London: "Every puff you take is a blow for liberty. A lighted cigarette is a torch of freedom." Air Chief Marshal Sir Christopher Foxley-Norris and Lt.-Gen. Sir Geoffrey Evans held a news conference to publicize what they call The Freedom Organization for the Right to Enjoy Smoking Tobacco — FOREST for short. At the moment FOREST does not have all that many members — only Foxley-Norris and Evans. "Smoking is the particular personal freedom currently under most heavy attack," said Foxley-Norris "and we want to protect the smoker from unfair discrimination."

In Oviedo, Fla., Doris Mager remains on top of a pine tree today, still resting in a huge eagle nest in an effort to draw attention to the plight of the bald eagle. "Time is going so fast, I'm almost disappointed in having to come down on Wednesday," said the 53-year-old "Eagle Lady" about her six-day stay in the trees. "The days have been going by so fast, it's unbelievable," she said. The weather has been sunny and warm for the last several days, in contrast to her first two days aloft when strong winds and rain buffeted her huge nest and sent the pine tree swaying.

Author Hugh Garner, who entered hospital June 5, is in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Toronto's Sunnybrook Medical Centre, a nursing supervisor said today. Garner, 66, author of several novels and numerous short stories, has been in poor health for a year. The hospital has not commented on the nature of Garner's illness.

Convicted mass murderer Richard Speck has been moved to an isolated unit of Joliet's Stateville Correctional Centre in Illinois because he fears for his safety, prison officials said. Speck, who was sentenced to 400 to 1,200 years for the 1966 murders of eight student nurses in Chicago's South Side, was moved Saturday night after he complained he was being threatened, a prison spokesman said Monday. Officials said Monday they were investigating Speck's complaints.

No doubt about it — Cher does not throw small intimate parties. She throws extravaganzas and her next one is calculated to look like something from a fever dream by Cecil B. DeMille. She opens June 28 as a solo headliner for one week at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas and she'll celebrate the event June 29 with a roller disco bash at the hotel's 4,400-seat Sports Pavilion — for 1,000 invited guests.

And finally, wandering around Peking on Monday, Bob Hope bought a Chinese print for fellow comedian Jackie Gleason, posed with a statue of an ancient comic and purchased bread, butter and milk for a quiet evening meal in his hotel. "Anyone who goes to more than one banquet a day here is crazy," said Hope, who arrived Saturday and has been dining and dropping one-liners since. "This place is a front for Alka-Seltzer." Hope spent the day shopping along Liu Li-chang, a winding alley of ramshackle shops with lace curtains in the windows. He plans to visit the Great Wall today and leave Wednesday for two days in Shanghai. He is in China to film an NBC television special, The Road to China.

Ulster murder

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrillas today killed an off-duty soldier of the Ulster Defence Regiment in Omagh, 80 kilometres west of Belfast, and at least three persons were wounded by bombs, police reported.

A spokesman said a gunman in a passing car shot the soldier dead as he walked out of a shop. The victim was the sixth regiment soldier killed this year and the 94th since the regiment was formed in 1971.

Security authorities blamed the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Cross-border duel

TEL AVIV (AP) — Palestinian and Israeli gunners exchanged fire across the Israeli-Lebanese border today after Israeli jets bombed Palestinian positions in southwest Lebanon.

An Israeli army spokesman said Katyusha rockets landed in upper Galilee at mid-morning, damaging buildings but causing no injuries. He said Israeli gunners returned the fire as residents in border settlements moved to underground shelters.

The air attack Monday was the first on Palestinian positions in southern Lebanon in 10 days.

Beirut said 10 Israeli air force jets made a 40-minute attack near the port of Tyre, 25 kilometres north of the Israeli border. It was the first Israei air raid on Palestinian bases in Lebanon since June 8, when positions near Metullah were attacked.

Israel gave no reason for the raid. But several months ago the government announced a policy of attacking Palestinian targets whenever it choses to.

In the occupied West Bank, meanwhile, an Israeli bulldozer cut a road through an Arab-owned olive grove Monday to begin work on a subdivision at the settlement of Karnei Shomron, 50 kilometres north of Jerusalem.

It was the second time work on a new site in the West Bank area has begun since Israel and Egypt signed their peace treaty March 26. But an agriculture ministry official said the settlement is considered an expansion of Karnei Shomron, not a new settlement.

Only a little pain

The immediate angry reaction of Victorians to a decision by the CBC to scrap all plans for a television station here is understandable. Shortchanged again by an eastern-based Crown corporation; the only provincial capital without its own CBC television station; not a crumb for the west when the federal pie is cut.

All of which may be true.

At the same time, as the CBC was not committed to provide strong service from its station here, we are probably better off without it.

From the beginning the CBC indicated it didn't intend to offer much original television programming from its new multicolored concrete building at Kings Road and Blanshard. We were warned that at first the Victoria station would only rebroadcast the Vancouver CBC signal, second by second. What's the point of being able to watch King of Kensington and Rene Simard on Channel 10 instead of (or in addition to) on Channel 2?

Even in the second stage, the CBC said, less than eight hours a week of local programming would be produced. That's really hardly worth the $6 million or $9 million or whatever it was the building and equipment would cost.

With the CBC now a victim of government restraint, the situation would only get worse. Money that is essential for quality television programming would not be available.

A television station faithfully rebroadcasting King of Kensington and Rene Simard with a few hours of underbudgeted, understaffed news shows each week would be of no advantage to the residents of the Victoria. Surely it would be better for the CBC to spend that extra money on really good programming on a national basis.

A few recent CBC projects, such as the Connections series, have shown that the Crown corporation can produce first-rate shows if it has the time, money, and staff. Such programs benefit the whole country. Indeed, they are probably more appreciated in Victoria than would be repeats of local news already available in the newspapers, on four local radio stations and the existing private television station — which as a CBC affiliate now rebroadcasts a good deal of the public network's programs.

The same argument might be made for the tiny FM radio station the CBC plans to open here. Through its several Vancouver radio outlets, the corporation already provides a lot of high-quality radio programming which is readily available to Victorians. Would it not be a better use of available funds to improve that service rather than produce five hours a day of some undisclosed type of local FM programming?

Well-funded local CBC radio and television service would certainly be a valuable addition to the city. However, in times of government restraint, all of us must make some sacrifices. This is one that Victorians can make with little pain.

Keep the line moving

Seattle has probably more mountaineers, backpackers and hikers than most cities its size. The doings of climbers are avidly followed. Anything about mountains and climbers is front page news there.

Two U.S. expeditions to Mount Everest were organized by and largely recruited from Seattle residents. One of the largest outdoors stores in North America is located there.

In short, it's a town crazy about vertical heights, with the 7,000-foot Olympics in front and the even higher Cascades and Coast ranges at the back door.

But the sheer numbers of alpinists discovering the joys of getting high have created traffic problems on the peaks. One of the highest mountains on the west coast, 14,410-foot Mount Rainier, is only 50 miles southeast of the city. In the short summer climbing season last year, some 5,400 people attempted the relatively uncomplicated ascent, and more than half made the top.

That's about 50 people a day. What used to be a personal challenge now is something you book like a dentist's appointment. Why do they climb Mount Rainer? "Because it's there. Pass it on."

Requiem for an elm tree

OTTAWA — This is an elegy for an elm. Once, it towered above our house like a stately, green umbrella. It was one of the tallest elms in Ottawa, at about 130 feet, and one of the oldest, at about 100 years. Now it is a stump.

The summer we moved in, an Arctic owl, somehow lost but implacable, unblinking and unmoved either by the crowd watching from below it or the ravens circling above it, perched there one day until sunset.

Another time, a lightning storm tore off a branch as large as a medium-sized elm. Its crash shook the entire house, and to prevent it happening again we had to have some smaller branches pruned so the wind could pass easily through. Five years ago, we spotted the first, cancerous signs — a patch of prematurely yellow leaves and dwarfing of some other leaves.

Tree sucks it up

No cure exists for cetratocystis ulmi, Dutch elm disease. However, half a dozen years ago, the Canadian Forestry Service and the University of Toronto jointly developed a preventive treatment called MBC-phosphate, which is a water-soluble fungicide.

To get the fungicide into the tree you wait for a prolonged dry spell and then inject the solution either into the roots or directly into the trunk. The tree sucks up the solution, and carries it along its water system to the diseased limb.

We did this twice. All around us elms died, and still are dying. Our elm rallied. Again, leaves on another branch yellowed and dwarfed. Again the tree rallied.

Last summer, the tree died. We ought to have had it cut down in the fall. We couldn't bring ourselves to make the telephone call until a fortnight ago. The men who cut it down were efficient and careful. And we hated them.

It wasn't, really, the demolition in three hours by brutally efficient chain saws, or 100 years of majesty that moved us. It was more our knowledge that our tree hadn't been killed but had committed suicide.

The blight, at first thought to be an after-effect of nerve gas, was discovered just after World War One in Holland, hence its name. It came to Canada unnoticed in diseased wood crates dumped on the dock in Sorel, Que., in 1940.

The beetles themselves are innocent. They only bore into the elm bark to hatch their eggs. By chance, though, these beetles pick up, and transport from one tree to another, the spores of the fungus cetratocystis ulmi.

Even the fungus spores are not lethal. They just multiply in the tree's water system. To isolate the irritant, the tree "dies back," that is, it cuts off its water supply to a diseased branch. The tree's reaction is too slow, though. Already, other spores have lodged inside another limb, which the tree then kills off. Progressively, and irreversibly, it kills itself.

The London plane tree excepted, the elm is the hardiest of urban trees. It is unharmed by pollution or by winter salt. It's roots are shallow, and can almost be asphalted over to the trunk. But the banning of DDT a decade ago freed the Dutch elm beetles to multiply.

The disease now is scything down elms throughout the eastern half of North America. On the other side, in Britain, hardly any elms will survive because, for lack of prolonged dry spells which make it possible for trees to suck up the fungicide, no real treatment is possible.

"No disease is a perfect killer, because, for lack of host trees, the fungus would end up killing itself," says Neil McLaren, manager of landscape services for Ottawa's National Capital Commission. "Younger trees are regenerating. Most of the majestic ones will go, though. The oldest we'll be left with will be around 50-75 years old."

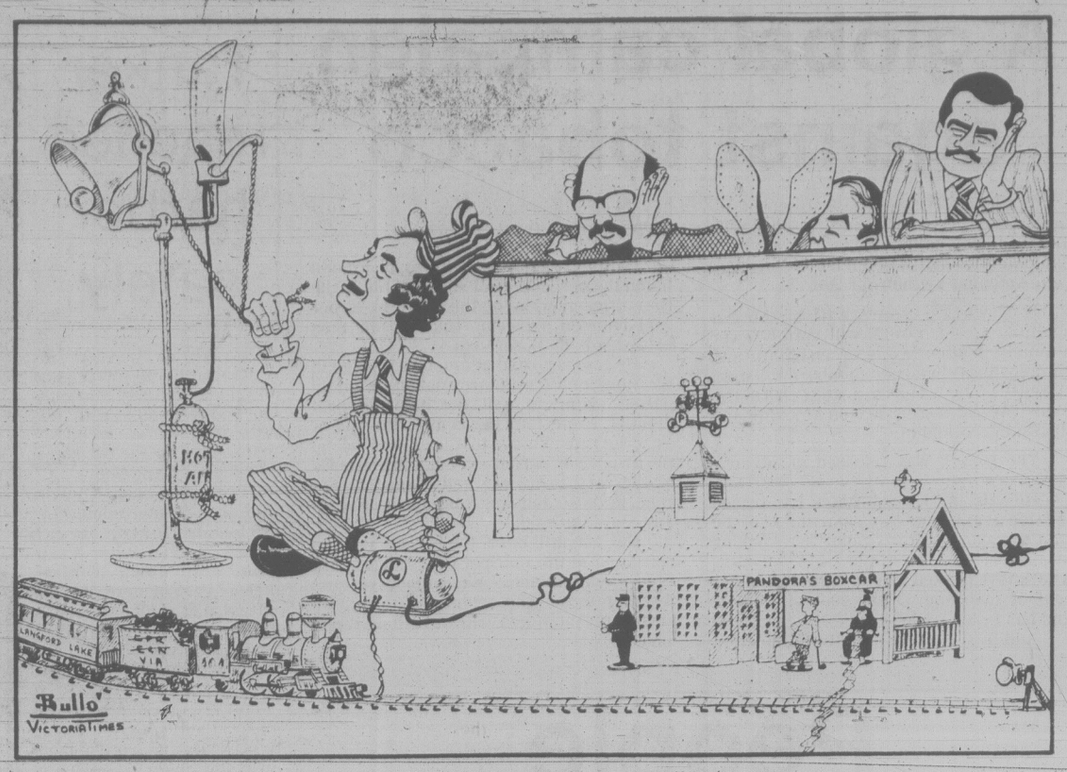

In the parklands it manages in and around Ottawa, the commission has selected 2,000 "priority" elms. At a total annual cost of $300,000, these trees are given the full, "integrated treatment" — two sprays, in early spring and mid-summer to kill off beetles in the bark, water and fertilizer to get the trees through the "stress" of the dry summer months, pruning of all dead branches, injections of fungicide.

Four feet across

Elms can last beyond 150 years. As they age, though, they become more susceptible to the disease. For three years, the commission fought to save a huge elm that shaded Sir John A. Macdonald's statue on Parliament Hill. More and more leaves yellowed and dwarfed. So they cut it down.

"I know its age, because I have a photograph of it as a sapling outside the Parliament Buildings as they were going up [in the 1860s]," McLaren told me. "After we cut it down, we measured it. You know, it was a full four feet across."

The interview ended, I drove home, got a tape measure, and went round to the front of our house. The stump measures a full four feet across.

"... Whooo-oo, whoo-oo ..."

Canada's pride

Great. If only I weren't such a born coward when it comes to public exposure of my vain physique printed on news pages or otherwise, I'd strongly tempt fates, putting up a good struggle acquiring some sort of national fame, curiously to have one sly glimpse of myself on just how I might come out of it. That is, when the most triumphant of features fresh from the stellar fame would have been zeroed into the famous Bierman cartoon lab wherein one then would have been redesigned accordingly! What a delicious shocker or surprise to be awaited!

No arguing. This man has got to rate as number one, the pride and joy of the cartoonist's art in Canada. Absolutely inimitable to the ultimate degree with his acute and ardent pen strokes, outlining people prominence and beauty watching all those thrust into his panoramic observations.

And why should he not then choose cartooning politicians as his career specialty? So I take exception to and heartily and totally disagree with the indignant feelings of Arthur Dutton's letter to the editor of June 12, on the "loathsome caricature of Rene Levesque" done by Bierman.

Surely, I feel, Rene could hold a certain affinity with Bierman on first viewing himself as possibly some potential pomposity now only pen pricked rather than some gently veiled fellow of future sugar-coated hypocrisies condoning sabre-flailing wars stemming from senseless hatreds, in reality ever more guesome, "loathsome" and indecent, in fact rather more so than that embodied in mere way out cartoons. Shouldn't we let democracy have a bit of general fun too, via Bierman charm? — M. Anderson, 640 Dallas Road.

It's not addictive

I was very disturbed by the letter you published June 13 entitled A Mother Writes. I too am a mother. My heart goes out to the woman who wrote that letter. She has my deepest sympathy for the terrible loss of the son she loved so much. However, the point of the letter seems to be that smoking marijuana leads to death from drug overdose and that is not so.

A study by David Duncan of the University of Texas sciences centre found that alcohol was the first intoxicant preferred and used by a vast majority of heroin addicts. "Speed," that is, some form of stimulant amphetamine, came second. There is no proof that those who use marijuana necessarily develop an interest in using "harder" drugs.

An article which appeared in the UBC Law Review stated: "Cannabis is not an addiction-producing drug; that is, it doesn't produce physical dependence or result in withdrawal symptoms so characteristic of the opiates, and it does not require progressively increased dosage to achieve the desired effects."

The article further says that "like alcohol, it appears to have no deleterious effect on the moderate user and seems to entail no danger for the stable personality."

The key words there seem to be "moderate user" and "stable personality." Any drug is capable of abuse and a person who abuses one drug is likely to abuse another if they start using it. Perhaps what we need to know is why some people who use drugs become abusers while others remain moderate users all their lives. We should be very careful when speculating on possible causes of drug abuse.

A marijuana cigarette does not lead to chronic drug addiction any more than a glass of wine with dinner or a bottle of beer after work leads to chronic alcoholism. — Carol A. McGrath, 3730 Press Avenue.

Ships and planes

David Cox' article New Fighter Fiasco May Be in Making (Times, June 12) and its call for a white paper on defence is a cogent commentary which has wider implications than air power alone. If we replace his references to "fighters" and "planes" with references to "destroyers" and "ships" we find rather able criticism of our maritime policy as well. To take but one example: "The Canadian dilemma is clear enough.

We can afford so few copies of the F-15 Eagle (substitute DD—destroyer) that they could not form a viable or politically respectable force. . ." The public hears isolated reports on a replacement program for our aging destroyers. It occasionally learns of plans to build new frigates; there are sporadic counter-suggestions that high-powered, well-armed patrol boats are the answer for coastal defence. One cannot be blamed for wondering if these are short term stop-gap measures.

The point at issue, as Cox clearly argues, is that Canada needs a clear statement of our rationale for defence. What is required is a new white paper, with comprehensive discussions in Parliament and the media. — Cdr. (R) Michael Hadley, Chairman, Malahat Unit, Maritime Defence Association of Canada.

Appointed on merit

The recent column (Something Must Be Done About Mandarins, June 1) by Douglas Fisher on the need for much "axing" of "mandarins" for the sake of "winkling out the rascals and incompetents" is silly, with little reason and much bile, although it does demand comment in one important respect.

As the individual who recommended the hiring of Tim Reid into the federal public service, I find the allegation that his appointment was one among "several hundred obvious Grit partisans whom Trudeau has put in nice slots throughout much of the government" a complete misrepresentation of the facts, an unwarranted slur upon a public servant appointed in accord with Public Service Commission procedures and the merit system, and an unwelcome libel against my own integrity.

The facts are these. In the fall of 1973 I was serving as deputy secretary for planning in the treasury board secretariat, on leave from my position as professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, and Mr. Reid was serving in a rather attractive position — in which he had the option to continue — with the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development in Paris, working on questions related to social indicators. The planning branch of the treasury board secretariat, which at that time was felt to be somewhat dominated by highly technical — and far from incompetent, by the way — economists, had a vacancy for a director at the SX2 level.

Mr. Reid, who was exploring the possibilities of returning home to enter the public service of his own country, had previously submitted a resume to the Public Service Commission, which was included among those circulated to me for consideration for the vacancy.

Since Mr. Reid's experience as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, with a graduate degree from Yale, as a member of a provincial legislature, with work on social policy at an international level, and a competitive drive sufficient to play as half-back with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, seemed potentially a desirable leavening in a group viewed as perhaps too narrowly professional and academic, I arranged an interview with Mr. Reid and one of my senior colleagues.

With absolute confidence I can say that at no time in the selection process was there ever any communication with any minister or anyone representing any minister or any member of the Liberal party relating to this appointment. The man was appointed on his merit, as I judged it, and promoted on his merit, as I judged it.

It is possible that I erred in these judgments. That is for others to say. But it seems to me that Fisher, and some other newspaper columnists, are altogether too casual in levelling allegations which amount to accusations of a lack of personal integrity or immoral conduct. I believe that your newspaper owes Mr. Reid — and others named in the same article — an apology, and Mr. Fisher owes us all an acknowledgment of his error in slinging irresponsible accusations, completely contrary to fact, carrying the implication that not only the Public Service Commission, but other public servants in "hundreds" of other cases would act not only incompetently but without integrity in such appointments. My experience of Canada's senior public servants has been quite the contrary. — A. R. Dobell, School of Public Administration, University of Victoria.

Hard to believe

I am writing to bring your attention to a remarkable situation. Growing up as a child in a small suburban Connecticut town in the United States it was mandatory that I learn a second language. We started with a teacher giving us 20 minutes, once a day, in kindergarten and continued on, in increasing amounts, through all of elementary school. In high school it was also required unless a certain proficiency had been attained. (Not being an able linguist, I had the full course.)

I now live in the capital city of British Columbia. I have a child growing up and I find he may not obtain instruction in French in his school next year. Basic French has been taught there for the last few years, but may be dropped from the program, as it is not considered a priority. In a country where a second language is a practical necessity rather than an academic goal I find it hard to believe we can not "afford" French instruction. And I find it even harder to believe that Canadians don't understand why many citizens in Quebec are upset. — D. C. Butterfield, 1-224 St. Andrews Street.

Forgotten men of Vietnam war

THE ECONOMIST

This month's week of remembrance in the U.S. for the veterans of Vietnam had an oddly artificial look. There was a brief White House reception, at which Mr. Carter declared that the nation was "ready to change its heart, its mind and its attitude." There was a small congressional victory, well timed, but won only as part of a controversial larger package, in which programs for psychiatric counselling and drug and alcohol abuse were finally approved after 10 years. The press, its memory jogged, was generous with articles about the "forgotten" men. Even Joan Baez, the singer who once called the soldiers home, paid them an indirect compliment by accusing the present government of Vietnam of abusing human rights.

But by all signs the nation's trauma has healed too quickly for such interest to be sincere. The Vietnam war is history. If anyone doubted this, they had only to listen to an interview with 16-year-olds put out by public radio in Washington, DC, to mark the week. Most of those children were under the impression that the war had been won by the United States.

The conflict in Vietnam came closer to Americans at home than any other war this century. Blanket television coverage earned it the name of "the living-room war." Yet it ended without fanfare. Returning troops met not ticker-tape, but demonstrators. Friends and relatives were embarrassed to hear them talk of what they had seen or what they had done. In consequence, many veterans pretended that the war had not affected them. For a long time it was thought that the Vietnam war had "traumatized" far fewer combatants than either of the world wars. But this was a false conclusion.

Those troops who picked up a heroin habit or alcohol addiction while serving in Asia have not, to this day, received proper treatment. Those with dishonorable discharges have not been able to claim treatment in the hospitals run by the Veterans Administration, even if they are disabled. The shell-shocked, who still have nightmares about the war and still cannot talk about it, may only be treated by enlisting in a psychiatric ward. Many, not wanting to be thought of as mentally ill, will not seek this sort of care. Others cannot bring themselves to use the clinics run by the Veterans Administration because they find, or imagine, that the clinics reflect a military establishment that regards them as losers. The rate of suicide among Vietnam veterans in these hospitals, where they are the youngest patients, is 23 per cent higher than the average.

The numbers involved are constantly disputed. Out of 9 million who are classed as veterans, the administration often cites a proportion of 65 per cent who, it says, have made a successful readjustment to civilian life. Many of these are better educated and enjoy higher incomes than their comtemporaries. Yet the figure of 65 per cent only represents those who troubled to claim their income and educational benefits under the GI Act: benefits which, with inflation, allowed few to complete the courses they had started. Of the 20 per cent of veterans who went to war without a high-school education, hoping (as Robert McNamara, then secretary of defence, promised) that the GI Act would get them into college and on up the social ladder, less than one third had used their benefits by 1977. It is not known how many are still using them, not for learning, but for food and clothes. One quarter of the prison population, it is alleged, is composed of veterans of the Vietnam period. Half of them are black. It is estimated that as many as 1.7 million veterans may need counselling before they can readjust at all.

Carter's efforts on their behalf have been kindly, but ham-fisted. Almost his first act in office was to offer an amnesty to draft-evaders, thereby appearing to cheapen the sacrifice of whose who had fought. Returning prisoners of war were invited to dinner at the White House, a cruel reminder to the others of how cool their own reception had been. Last October, when a new $250 million program of benefits was introduced byCarter, the vice-president was left to announce it because it was a "low priority". The Hire program, set up especially to help Vietnam veterans find jobs, spent only $14 million of its $140-million allocation in the first eight months. The truth is that, despite the administration's sincere attempts to encourage employers to take veterans, there is a hard core whose continuing problems make them by and large unemployable.

The Vietnam veterans also lack strength in congress. For many years they could count on sympathy only from the senate. Both in the house of representatives and inside the Veterans Administration itself — despite the presence, at its head, of Max Cleland, who lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam — overwhelming influence still lies with the older, prouder survivors of the earlier wars. These men are now of an age when their preoccupations, with pensions and life-long security of income, could not be more clearly different from those of young men in their 30s. The counselling and drug-abuse programs, with their modest price-tag of $16 million, were delayed for many months in congress because, at a time of stricter budgeting for veterans, the old soldiers resisted the competition with their own interests.

That anything at all was produced to mark the veterans' week is a credit to relatively few people. A new congressional caucus, led by Representative Davis Bonior of Michigan, has been working with prominent disabled veterans outside congress to encourage the nation to think, and talk, about Vietnam. This group has been largely responsible for reviving inquiries into the herbicide Agent Orange, a defoliant used in Vietnam, which may have caused lesions and arthritic pain in more than 500 survivors. Bonior says, hopefully, that he has started to notice some changes. He believes that the recent spate of books and films on Vietnam, from Michael Herr's harrowing Dispatches to the facile moralizing of The Deer Hunter, can only help. The pity is that help, even of this kind, has not come until now.

FEIFFER

'Crisis of incompetence' in Ottawa

DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—"Where are we going in Canada," said R.A.B. Ellis, "when a supposedly responsible correspondent in a national newspaper can get away with outright vilification of a whole echelon of public employees, most of whom are hard-working and honorable?"

Ellis lives in Ottawa and, I understand, is a former high-ranking military officer. His critical attention was focused on me and a column I wrote about the incredible waste in the federal bureaucracy and the inadequacies of the senior mandarinate.

I was writing on the theme which has roused me more than any other in the past 15 years; the emergence of Ottawa as Fat City, based on a public service work force which, by and large, drifts. It's a city where you can't get service or response in federal departments on Friday afternoons, where officials of any rank seem always to be away from the phone at coffee time.

You will recognize there is real emotion, bitter emotion, in those last few sentences. On with Ellis!

"There is no defence against this type of attack and Fisher knows it, of course. He should also have the sense, with his experience, to realize that the sins he deplores should be laid at the doorsteps of the ministers who defy the principle of accountability."

Ellis concluded his letter to the Ottawa Citizen with the information that, "I am not, and never have been a civil servant, much less a mandarin. I am simply objecting to nastiness."

Ellis' points are well-taken, as they say. I was being nasty and I was applying a failure mark to a substantial group of people. They number almost 2,500. They are the senior executives of the federal public service.

My reasoning is crude and direct. At almost every department and agency of the government one turns to today, one finds a poor record and sour projects. Some are gaffes one can see physically like Mirabel Airport or the office fortresses which boondoggle on the Hull skyline. One can see it in the remarkable way the senior civil servants looked after themselves in the salaries race. Other witness is the sheer lushness of furnishings, art, decoration and flowers in senior offices. Perhaps the most wicked and apparent of all is the ridiculous overstaffing in the planning and public relations components of most governments and agencies.

Ellis gives the stock response, one which I began to reject more than a decade ago when I realized the ongoing government of the bureaucracy is essentially more powerful and far less responsible to anyone or any institution (including Parliament) than the few elected politicians who become ministers and so, accordng to the political textbooks, "the masters."

My contention is simple. Until the public and the elected politicians appreciate and decide to do something about it that is very drastic — God knows the auditor-general has made some drastic criticisms — the reign of the shoddy, the largely incompetent, the upward-mobile grafters and toadies will continue, and the standards of the federal public service will decline even further.

In other words, Mr. Ellis, I am saying we have a crisis of incompetence and wasteful behavior in the senior executive group in the public service. I suppose if I were looking at a military parallel, it would be an army division with fine troops, excellent NCOs and company officers, and a highly-flawed band of senior officers at the level of regimental and brigade command. That is, a situation not unlike that in the Canadian army overseas during the Second World War, especially in the fall-winter-spring of 1943-1944, when dozens of senior officers who wouldn't do were cleaned out and replaced.

Ministerial responsibility — that is, the politician as boss — no longer works much at all. Very little of it has to do with cowardly politicians, although we have lots of examples of that in the past decade, for example Goyer and the planes purchases, or Allmand, Fox and Blais with the RCMP security service.

We have had inordinately secretive government in Ottawa.

Time and again when you seek to find why freedom-of-information acts never come or find out why MPs and their committees have been frustrated for information it comes out that it is the mandarinate which blocks.

If the responsibility really could be laid at the political masters one would assume that senior officials could be fired for failures. Instead they have such a neat system of self-protection. For example, in the annual assessments they do of each other (revealed a few years ago in the Clyne-Lambert reports) we find that 97 per cent of them were graded from very good to satisfactory; only 3 per cent were less than satisfactory. Such obvious hogwash.

Couple such self-inflation with the continuing repetition of the platitude I first heard 40 years ago — "Canada has one of the finest, perhaps the finest, public service in the world" — and you have a huge community in Ottawa of public servants, led by a group that asserts it is beyond criticism. Don't criticize us, criticize our masters! We are the finest.

I reached the conclusion several years ago that an end to anonymity for the mandarins was overdue — it was getting phoney anyway, largely because they've become such big frogs in the Ottawa pond.

I also decided that it was almost a sin against democracy, judging by the senior officials I observed or dealt with — that we couldn't get people of better quality. And so I became an advocate of exposure, of demotion or dismissal for failures, and of the urgent need to replace and shuffle many of those now ensconsed in the top posts.

Yes, if to declare the opinion about the federal public service, that it is badly led and managed, then I am responsible, as Ellis wrote the Citizen, for the "outright vilification of a whole echelon of public employees ..."

Anyone on the plateau?

Katharine Whitehorn

LONDON — Can anyone who's read Pilgrim's Progress remember whether there was ever a moment when Christian sat down under a tree, said "This is a bit of all right then," and cheered up?

I'm prompted to ask by the latest ration of books to descend on my desk all about the Middle Years; which are also, it turns out, supposed to be a Problem time in the life of man or woman.

There's Late Bloom by Luree Miller, an American book about a number of women who found new identities via a gift shop, photo-journalism (of course), a late degree in medicine and a great dose of sisterhood: 'We quickly realized that everybody had a problem.' There's the BMA Book of Executive Health, a Times of London publication which has somehow fought its way out through the thorns surrounding that sleeping beauty. It is, as you'd expect, written in a tone of lofty briskness which suggests that it's only really for the firm's sake that you are bothering with such things as your over-promotion, sleeplessness or mental overload at all.

★ ★ ★

And there's Futures by Shirley Conran and Elizabeth Sydney, taking you through a marathon of house purchase, divorce, job-changing, bankruptcy — the lot; senior superwoman is very funny and full of handy facts, but only too aware that "nobody seems immune to trouble; even royalty is affected by mental illness, divorce and VD in racehorses." The fact that all three books are written in a tone of relentless up-beat cheer, that they urge you not to be bowed down for one moment by worrying about cancer or coronaries, loss of hair, job or libido, or the mere awful fact of being middle-aged and, where applicable, female, does nothing to make them less depressing; since I wasn't thinking of being so bowed down anyway, until they suggested it.

I expect they are excellent if you do need help; and of course there are tens of thousands of the middle-aged who are afflicted with problems, real ones, and badly need such manuals. Only — if I can ask without appearing to be totally unfeeling — aren't there any middle-aged people who are not?

Put it another way: if the middle-aged can't run their own lives satisfactorily, who can? They've got the experience and the know-how as the very young haven't; and they aren't yet in a state of total physical collapse, even if they do puff a bit going round corners. If they are to be defined as a Problem, who on earth isn't?

You go from the Problems of adolescence, all spots and nerves, to the Problem of sexual adjustment — Vaseline, communication; there's the problem of starting work, if any; and of course a regular field day of Problems if there's no work to start. No sooner are you beached on some decent bloke than you're faced with the Problems of pregnancy, childbirth, infant feeding, being housebound; get over that and you're into the Problem of boredom or the emptying nest or the difficulty of returning to work or whatever it is next. And the same for men; no let-up between the struggle to acquire confidence, get a job, support a family, and the Problem of stress if you're successful, of good old-fashioned failure if you're not.

But where is the stretch in which people actually feel OK? Where is the plateau you might hope to reach between the struggle up the hill and the long slow slide to the grave on the other side? I would have thought there was a point where quite a few people could say things weren't really going too badly; off-spring no worse than usual; marriage no better but we're used to it; figure within limits; dandruff, greenfly, bank balance under control; mature man, mature woman taking the strain equally in all parts, as they say in the Navy.

Perhaps the plateau is rarer than I think: certainly when the Pahls did their studies of managers and their wives, they discovered that even the most successful wanted their children to go into the professions — because there, alone, you could reach a plateau, and not always have to keep running to stay in the same place. Maybe even good gardeners do obsessively make and remake the garden, even good cooks search restlessly through the cookery books for new recipes. And, if people do feel flat and flabby and discontented, and want to try a change of direction, re-make their lives before it's too late, why, the best of luck to them.

But I can't help wondering if problems aren't at least partly a fashion. In the U.S. it's the 'me' decade, all this endless self-realization; but here it's the Age of Concern. Anyone who actually admitted to being perfectly well able to cope would, I suspect, be instantly thought smug and insensitive and boorish. I haven't actually heard of anyone developing a rare disease in order to join a self-help group; but I'm almost wondering if it wouldn't be worth starting a sort of Club sans Club, a group for those who have nothing interesting the matter with them, no unspeakable secrets to share, no catastrophes whose enormity dwarfs normal living.

★ ★ ★

A Minister for the Middle-Aged; A Middle-Aged Attendance Allowance; Middle-Aged Compassion Week; buy a flower for Middle-Aged Day — an over-blown rose, perhaps. Put like that, it's loony; so where is this problem of middle age we're hearing about? The worst problem of middle age that I know of is the simple fact that middle-aged women are the only ones calm enough, tough enough and knowledgeable enough to cope with the real problems of everybody else. But I don't see anyone suggesting a remedy for that.

Arabs cut cash flow to Canada

These are the Royal Bank of Canada, the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Toronto Dominion Bank, which also has a branch in Abu Dhabi.

A spokesman for the representative office of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Bahrain said he has not been informed of the AMF's decision.

The bank also has an offshore branch in Bahrain.

Finance Minister John Crosbie admitted that the decision will create some problems. But Canadians should not spend sleepless nights worrying about it, he said.

Crosbie and other federal ministers said today they want clarification of the Arab announcement before commenting further. The finance minister indicated the decision would be discussed at today's inner cabinet meeting.

Industry Minister Robert de Cotret said the Arabs have a significant presence financially in this country but he could not name a figure for Arab financial investment in Canada.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe said today the action by the AMF will not likely have any effect on a $200 million loan B.C. Hydro obtained from Saudi Arabia.

"It's not related in any way to this (the AMF action)," Wolfe said.

The minister said however, his staff has been instricted to obtain more details of the AMF amnnouncement and determine what it means to B.C. in general.

Final exams are back!

For the first time in 10 years Lansdowne junior secondary school students are writing final examinations.

They filed into the school gymnasium Monday for the first finals of their lives and seem to be taking it well, principal Ted Curtis said today.

Curtis said Lansdowne is probably the only school in the district to have all Grades 8, 9, and 10 students sitting for finals in most subjects.

The school is holding finals all week and attendance hasn't been this high in June for a long time.

Although formal final exams have not been used regularly for at least a decade, Curtis said teachers made a decision earlier this year to bring them back.

"The pendulum has swung the other way. We will probably stay with it."

Bringing back exams is intended as a way to evaluate student performance and teacher effectiveness.

Curtis feels the experience will be valuable, particularly for those writing government scholarships or planning to go on to university where examinations are standard procedure.

TOWN TALK

Caramba! You think you have problems, Senor y Senora? They're nothing compared to what Sheila McHugh is facing.

On June 28, as many as 26 young Mexican students will arrive in Victoria to take part in a two-month summer exchange program.

Her problem is she's found homes for only six of the students. Homes for the other 20 are desperately needed, to put it mildly.

The students are participating in Intercambio International, a cultural exchange involving Canadian and Mexican students. The program runs from June 28 to Aug. 24.

The program, which is inter-denominational, was started by a Mexican priest, Fr. Placid, 25 years ago and Victoria's participation dates back 10 years.

Mrs. McHugh says she didn't quite expect the Mexican response to the program, and has been caught short in providing homes here.

All of the 20 students still looking for homes are boys aged 15.

Persons willing to host one or more of the youngsters, particularly if they have children in the same age group, are asked to contact her at 382-8106.

All that's required is to provide room and board . . . and some love.

Former Saanich policeman-turned poet, artist and publisher, John Adams, feels he has a solution for an emergency telephone number system for Greater Victoria residents. And, he says, it's as simple as ABCDEFG.

Adams' method involves arranging letter decals on the dial face of the phone in a pattern that corresponds to the local police number. For example a resident of Esquimalt where the police number is 385-1441 would place a decal of the letter A next to the number three, B next to the number eight, C next to five and so one.

He believes residents in times of an emergency would simply have to let their fingers follow the alphabet in calling for help.

He submitted his idea to the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee last month and was naturally hoping for words of support.

The committee thanked him and said his letter had been received and filed.

Those who watch closely the activities along the political corridors have noticed that NDP leader Dave Barrett, who always had a battle of the waistline, is even pudgier than usual of late.

Well, the porky politician has decided to do something about it, although he doesn't seem as committed as Health Minister Bob McClelland who dropped 50 excess pounds.

Barrett, who refuses to divulge his weight, says he picked up a few extra pounds while picking up extra votes on the election campaign.

So now he has embarked on another losing campaign — to lose those pounds he added on the hustings.

Three Victorians will try to get their names in the Guinness Book of World Records by crossing the Juan de Fuca Strait strictly on kite power.

Bernard Stewart, Barry Heibert and Shannon MacLeod will attempt the crossing Saturday, June 30, from Crescent Bay, Wash., to the Inner Harbor, a distance of about 60 k/m. If successful, it will be the longest water kite-tow ever.

Aboard a Zodiac inflatable craft they will control a vertical column of up to 10 stunt kites, measuring two feet by six feet, which will provide the sole propulsion for boat and occupants.

The crossing is expected to take two to four hours depending on wind conditions.

The three-kiters are trying to get local businessmen to sponsor their bid on a dollars-per-kilometre basis, with all proceeds going to the 1979 United Way campaign.

Picnics in the park are part of the North American lifestyle but a family picnic in Beacon Hill Park on Sunday will have a particular significance.

The principals will be Fred Oak, 69, of 377 Silica in Langford, and his cousin Fred C. Powell, 76, of Southall, England. This will be their first reunion in 65 years.

Oak's father, the late Frederick Albert Oak, was the first man to sell millwood in Victoria. His son and Powell met during the First World War when the elder Oak decided to return to England for a spell with his family.

Commission named to study methods

Esquimalt to split police, firemen

Esquimalt municipality decided Monday to separate police and firefighting roles and set up a commission to study how best to do it.

The recommendation to abandon the community's dual public safety force in favor of units with individual responsibility was made by Mayor Art Young at a closed council session.

Young said he does not want to second-guess the committee's findings, likely to be reached by fall.

However, the mayor earlier suggested that a separate fire department could come about through a full-time municipal force, a combined full-time/volunteer force, a joint arrangement with Greater Victoria fire departments or a contracted out arrangement.

Existing police force members get about $100 a month extra for doubling as firemen.

Besides the chief constable who is nominally fire chief as well, there is an inspector and six civilian employees in the department.

Young said Ald. James McEvay was named chairman of the council committee, with members Ald. Barry Gilbert, Ald. Larry Mann and police board members Jack Rutherford.

McEVAY

Their report is expected no later than November and will include numbers, cost and a schedule for phasing in a new arrangement.

Police union president Bill Wyatt said he hopes the union will take advantage of the opportunity to discuss the change.

"Separate forces has been a topic of salary negotiations since I've been involved (12 years) and went on years before that," Wyatt said.

In 1964 the union asked the B.C. Supreme Court to split the force, but the court ruled it had no jurisdiction because the two roles were covered by a collective agreement.

Wyatt said the union has worked out several alternatives and the members feel a workable firefighting force could consist of 16 men divided into a platoon system of four to a shift working 14-hour nights and 10-hour days.

Another proposal might be to phase in a new system over two or three years to ease the cost and shifting of personnel.

Young said the municipality will work with the union to avoid hardships which could occur in transferring duties.

An ad hoc arrangement providing fire protection through policemen or other municipal employees existed in Esquimalt up to 1955 when the dual role of police was recognized in the collective agreement.

A B.C. Police Commission task force recently reported to council on police department efficiency, leading aldermen to conclude that improvement in public safety coverage was needed.

Quiet bandit for Oak Bay

Oak Bay police are seeking a soft-spoken bandit who held up the Toronto-Dominion Bank at 2533 Estevan Monday and escaped with $1,200.

It was the first bank robbery in the municipality in 25 years.

Police said the man entered the bank at 11:05 a.m. and handed teller Nancy Holmes, 25, a brown paper bag on which was printed the message: "Put all your money in the bag quickly."

Police said when she looked up, the man pulled out a small black handgun from under a denim jean jacket he was wearing.

"Do you want it all?" Holmes asked

"All of it. Hundreds, fifties, all the bills. Hurry up," the bandit replied.

She stuffed the bills in the bag and the man walked out a side door and disappeared down a back alley.

Police said there was only one customer in the bank at the time. The customer and staff members were unaware of the robbery until after the bandit had left.

Police immediately set up patrols in the area and brought in a police dog team but the suspect escaped.

The last bank holdup in Oak Bay was in 1954 at the old Bank of Commerce on Oak Bay Avenue.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me what the D in D-Day stands for? M.H.

A. The D is an abbreviation for day. D-Day is the term for a secret date on which a military operation is to begin. The expression D-Day became current in the Second World War when it defined the dates set for Allied landings on enemy-held coasts. The most famous D-Day is June 6, 1944, when the Allies invaded Normandy.

Unions rally for jobs

Unemployed building trades union members held a rally at the Legislative Buildings today to put pressure on the provincial government for more job-creating measures.

Victoria carpenters union organizer Ken Rowell said in an interview some tradesmen have been out of work for two years now and there is no improvement in site.

During the winter the unemployment rate among carpenters was as high as 50 per cent and has only dropped to about 45 per cent now, Rowell said.

"We're trying to emphasize to the government that there is a need for a summer works program let alone a winter works program."

Four-storey hotel given initial okay

Construction of a new multi-million-dollar hotel in James Bay was approved in principle today by Victoria's land use and planning committee.

If, as expected, city council backs the recommendation, Kingsmount Holdings Ltd. could begin construction by September on Montreal Street across from Harbor Towers.

Kingsmount spokesman Mike Weston said the four-storey, 119-unit hotel will cost $4 to $5 million and will employ a staff of 125 when in full operation.

Architect Nick Bawlf said the building is designed with a turn-of-the-century look and it will be finished with cedar siding and a shake roof.

The Kingsmount representatives appeared before the planning committee because they said they had reached an impasse with council's Advisory Design Panel.

Bawlf said five weeks of meetings had failed to satisfy the design panel's reservations concerning the building's design and its siting on the block.

He urged the committee to approve the plans in principle so that Kingsmount could be assured it was heading in the right direction.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh pointed out, however, that "once you get an approval in principle the major commitment has been made . . . that will be the way that things fit together on the site."

Ald. Bob Wright agreed with that assessment and added it would be unusual for the committee to override the design panel.

Weston complained, however, that "we are sitting in limbo and we'd ask that we be given some guidelines."

On a motion by Ald. Bill McElroy the planning committee decided to advise council to direct the design panel to forget its objections to the building's siting, and to confine future recommendations to the building's design.

Wright supported the motion, saying he was delighted with the Kingsmount proposal because it retains three heritage houses — one of which is the Captain's Palace restaurant — on the block.

The hotel will face Quebec Street and the three houses will be left intact where they now stand facing Belleville.

Ald. John Hayes said the Kingsmount proposal was just about the best the city could hope for on that site.

But he added: "With three genuine heritage buildings in front and a pseudo-heritage building behind . . . it could look good, or it could look terrible."

Aldermen approve gliders

Hang-gliders should be allowed to continue jumping off the cliffs along Dallas Road, city council's parks committee agreed today.

The committee had been giving consideration to a police department request that the gliders be banned, but a submission by glider Ian Vantreight persuaded them otherwise.

Vantreight, representing the Hang-gliding Association of B.C., said the police had never discussed the situation with his group and were misinformed about the dangers of the sport.

$22,400 Hike for school study

Greater Victoria school board decided Monday to give its education commission a $22,400 budget increase.

The decision was fought by three trustees, who criticized the seven-member commission and its district-wide study on education needs.

Although the budget was originally set at $33,800, several proposed budget increases ranging from $10,200 to $22,400 have bounced back and forth between the board and its planning committee.

The increases were proposed by committee chairman Bernard Gillie, who said they were needed to pay for program evaluations by outside professionals.

Gillie, who receives a $2,000 monthly salary, also proposed honorariums for committee members now working as volunteers. That suggestion was rejected by the board.

Several trustees opposed to the budget increase said the evaluations wouldn't be completed by Oct. 15, the date the commission is expected to hand in an interim report.

Since funds are guaranteed only until mid-October, starting outside projects is a way to keep the commission alive beyond that date, they suggested.

A motion by Trustee Peter Yorke to allow only outside studies that will be finished by October was defeated.

Trustee Glyn Williams said the board will have little control over costs incurred by the commission.

He said Gillie's part-time salary worked out to about $48,000 a year — almost as much as schools superintendent Allan Stables is making.

"I don't think we're getting the value for our dollar."

Trustee Susan Brice said proposals from outside evaluators wouldn't have as much impact as proposals made by people working inside the district.

Some of the studies recommended by the commission are probably already being done by the administration, she said.

However, the majority of trustees felt the outside evaluations necessary if the commission is to keep its independence.

Trustee John Young, the school board's representative on the commission, said questioning the commission's judgment is a delaying tactic designed to interfere with its work and undermine its ability.

He said Williams' calculation of Gillie's salary is inadequate because he works more than part-time hours.

5.75% for faculty at UVic

University of Victoria board of governors has granted faculty members a 5.75 per cent salary increase.

Faculty association president Dr. Samuel Scully said the raise is less than hoped for.

Scully said, however, the association realizes the board is under pressure from its major funding source, the provincial government, to keep costs down.

The board can unilaterally determine faculty salaries but usually considers proposals submitted by the association.

This year's increase means an assistant professor, at the bottom end of the tenure scale, will make $19,300 a year.

Billy's back, again not on schedule

By BARRY WILNER

NEW YORK (AP) — Vowing that things won't be much different than in the past, Billy Martin has returned to manage New York Yankees.

But one thing that may be very different from the the first time around is Martin's relationship with slugging outfielder Reggie Jackson.

"Everyone knows we need Reggie to win," Martin said Monday after the World Series champions ended three days of speculation, acknowledgements and denials by announcing that Martin would take over as the American League baseball club's field general for tonight's game against Toronto Blue Jays. He replaces Bob Lemon, the man who took over last July when Martin tearfully resigned the position.

"I don't think Reggie will be a problem," said Martin, who had more than his share of run-ins with the tempermental outfielder. "He's awfully important to the team. He knows it and I know it.

Jackson has been sidelined for two weeks with a muscle tear, but "when he's ready to go, he'll be the designated hitter."

"Then he'll move into right field, but not until he's completely healthy."

Throughout their 1½ years together with the Yankees, Martin and Jackson were at odds. The two nearly came to blows on national television in Boston in 1977 as Martin lifted Jackson from a game when he felt the outfielder didn't hustle after a fly ball. Jackson also was suspended for five games for disobeying the manager's orders to swing away and bunting instead near the end of Martin's tenure last season.

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner apparently wants no such incidents this time and made that clear to Martin. Steinbrenner told Tom McEwen, sports editor of the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, that Martin had agreed to tell Jackson "the Yankees can't win without him, that he is needed if we are to win another championship."

Jackson was mum on Martin's return, but Matt Merola, Jackson's agent, said he felt "under the right circumstance, they can get along."

And Martin wasn't worried about his relationship with Jackson, either, saying he doubted reports that Jackson once accused Martin of "hating him."

"Reggie likes me, I think," he said. "I like Reggie. He'll play hard for me. I don't hate anybody. I'm a Christian man. I might get mad at some people . . . I have no hate in my heart."

Martin, 51, originally was scheduled to reassume his duties as field boss of the Yankees next season. With the defending champions skidding to fourth place in the AL East, however, Steinbrenner decided to bring the fiery manager back now.

"All along, George has said, 'Billy will be back,'" a relaxed Martin said Monday night. "And he kept his word.

"I was getting tired and fed up with people asking if I'd really be back with the Yanks. George and I met two weeks ago, to iron out things for 1980 and he did everything he told me he'd do in that meeting — except sooner."

Martin left the Yankees sooner than expected last season after uttering his now-famous statement that "one (Jackson) is a born liar and the other (Steinbrenner, who was involved in an illegal political contributions case) is convicted."

Five days after his resignation, however, the team announced on Old Timer's Day at Yankee Stadium that Martin would return to manage the Yankees in 1980, with Lemon moving to the front office.

That timetable was speeded up when Steinbrenner accompanied the Yankees for part of a just-completed road trip and saw New York win four and drop five. It was in Texas that the owner decided to bring back Martin, who will sign a contract for the rest of 1979 and the following two seasons later this week.

"A change was needed," Steinbrenner said.

Lemon had the club at 34-31, eight games behind first-place Baltimore Orioles. While cleaning out his desk at Yankee Stadium, Lemon vowed to "help Billy in any way."

"I hope this turns the club around like last year," Lemon said, alluding to the Yankees' miracle run that brought them from 10½ games behind Boston when he took over to the World Series championship. "Nothing surprises me in baseball, and what happened last winter (the death of his 26-year-old son Jerry in an auto wreck) put things into a better perspective for me.

"I found there were a lot more important things in life than baseball. George told me he felt a change would benefit the club and he pointed out to me that we were going to do it anyway in 1980."

Admitting he'd "only seen the Yankees once this year, on TV," Martin said:

"I don't think any manager likes to take over in the middle of the season," he said. "It's not easy to jump in there. But I'm not worried. Like they say, it's a matter of time until a manager get hired and fired."

In less than a year, Martin has been both, neither time on schedule.

Baker big bomber

Worcester Mass., Interstate Batterymen, the New England state champions, will provide some high-powered opposition for Victoria Budgets in "Super Series" men's softball exhibition doubleheaders tonight and Wednesday at Royal Athletic Park. The twin bills start at 7 each night.

The star of Batterymen is Abe "Home Run" Baker, who had hit 506 homers before this season and has sometimes been referred to as the "Babe Ruth of fastball".

Worcester was formed in 1972 and now boasts a lifetime won-loss average of .630.

Ryan was pleased but fans groaned

By Associated Press

Nolan Ryan got what he wanted, but not what everyone else wanted.

For the second time this season, the fireballing right-hander came within five outs of a record fifth no-hitter Monday night but had to settle for his 15th career two-hitter in California Angels' 5-0 victory over Texas Rangers.

"I wasn't disappointed," said Ryan, who lost his no-hit bid when Oscar Gamble singled with one out in the eighth. "I just wanted a shutout and a win. I didn't feel I had no-hit stuff. If I had been overpowering, it might have bothered me, but I didn't give it much thought."

In other American League action, Baltimore Orioles nipped Cleveland Indians 8-7, Boston Red Sox outlasted Detroit Tigers 9-8, Kansas City Royals edged Oakland A's 3-2 and Seattle Mariners trimmed Chicago White Sox, 5-1.

Ryan, who shares the major-league record of four career no-hitters with Sandy Koufax, had faced the minimum number of 22 batters until Gamble, a left-handed pull-hitter, slashed a 3-1 pitch under the glove of diving third baseman Carney Lansford. Billy Sample's single with two out in the ninth deprived Ryan of his seventh career one-hitter.

"I'd be lying to you if I told you I didn't want it (the no-hitter)," said Ryan.

He said Gamble hit a fast ball on the outside part of the plate.

"I got behind him. I wasn't going to walk him and get myself in trouble. If I had been overpowering, I would have pitched him differently."

Catcher Tom Donohue, who drove in the Angels' first two runs with a third-inning homer off Chatham, Ont., native Ferguson Jenkins, said he thought Ryan "threw the hell out of the ball."

"He said he had nothing, but even then he still throws harder than anyone else. I was more excited than Nolie. I'd never caught a no-hitter before."

The Anaheim Stadium crowd of 37,096 groaned in disappointment at Gamble's hit and then gave Ryan a minute-long ovation.

Ryan walked two and struck out 10, extending to 125 his own major-league record for double-figure strikeout games. Until the eighth, Texas' only baserunner was Pat Putnam, who drew a leadoff walk in the second inning but was caught stealing as Gamble struck out.

Following Gamble's hit, Ryan walked Richie Zisk, but retired Jim Sundberg on a fly ball and fanned pinch hitter Eric Soderholm.

Lansford also tagged Jenkins for a two-run homer in the third inning and doubled home the Angels' final run in the fifth.

Wilson extends hitting streak

Shortstop Bob Wilson kept a hitting streak alive while helping Elks-Athletics to a 10-3 Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League decision over Tally-Ho in a Monday game at Central Park.

Wilson, who went into the game with a league-leading .535 average, scored the first run of the game after drawing a base-on-balls in the first inning and extended his hitting skein to 10 games with a seventh-inning single.

Bob Bugslag helped Elks-Athletics with a two-run homer.

In Victoria Senior Women's League play, VI 90 Vicettes downed Island Dryco Breakers 10-3 and Esquimalt Combos tripped Capital City Pirates 13-5 at Hyacinth park.

Nancy McLachlan fired a two-hitter for Vicettes and Cindy Smith was three-for-four at the plate.

Linda Newcombe set the batting pace for Combos with a two-for-three effort.

Tagge will work against Hamilton

Times News Services

Quarterback Jerry Tagge will see his first action of the season tonight for British Columbia when the Lions meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a Canadian Football League exhibition game at Vancouver.

The two-year veteran watched from the sidelines a week ago in Edmonton when the Lions used three quarterbacks in beating the Eskimos 32-27 in the first exhibition game for both teams.

Head coach Vic Rapp of the Lions said Monday that Tagge will play the first half against Hamilton. Then he'll chose from Dennis Shaw, Joe Paopao and Carlos Brown for second-half action.

"We're going to continue to play wide-open football because we've still got a lot of players to look at," said Rapp. "I'm assuming Hamilton will be doing the same."

The Tiger-Cats will use rookies Ed Smith and Dave Marler at quarterback against the Lions.

Rapp hopes to get a look at wide receiver Leon Bright tonight. Bright injured a leg on the first day of training camp and has fallen behind Thomas Geredine, a receiver with four years of NFL experience. Geredine caught two touchdown passes against Edmonton.

It was a dull affair Monday night in Ottawa as field-goal kickers provided most of the scoring while the Rough Riders were nipping Winnipeg Blue Bombers 13-11 in an exhibition outing.

Gerry Organ, back from a one-year retirement, kicked four field goals and a 75-yard single to lead Ottawa to its first win in two pre-season games. Riders were beaten 36-20 last week by Montreal Alouettes.

His Winnipeg counterpart, Bernie Ruoff, kicked three field goals as the Bombers suffered their second straight loss, having been beaten 35-13 by Calgary Stampeders a week ago.

McEnroe tidies manners; sets sights on Bjorn Borg

LONDON (AP) — John McEnroe tidied up his court manners, moved from double-faults to aces and defeated Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-7, 6-1, 6-1 in the final of the Stella Artois tennis tournament Monday.

It was McEnroe's last tournament before he sets his sights at Bjorn Borg for the title at Wimbledon, starting next week.

The 20-year-old left-hander took the court at the Queen's Club after receiving one of the worst roastings ever given to a tennis player by the British press. This followed his escapades of the last two days when he argued with spectators, had heated exchanges with umpires and was given two penalty points.

Glen scores three victories

John Glen made his mark in a big way during Monday's harness-racing program at Sandown Raceway.

Glen, a 21-year-old from Regina Beach, Sask., collected three victories and added place and show finishes in six trips to the post.

His main win came in the featured ninth race when he drove Quel Dale, a six-year-old gelding he claimed at Cloverdale. Quel Dale, which came close last time out, was in the clear at the finish but a camera was needed to determine that Maple Hills Smokey had nipped pace-setting Phantom Dancer for place money.

Glen also scored with Charms All, a gelding he trains for Alberta owners, in the fifth and with Alemite Quill, owned by the injured Joe Hudon, in the tenth race.

He now has 16 wins, second to leading driver Keith Linton's 27, as well as 12 place and 14 show finishes.

Big Exactors also played a part in highlighting the program.

Starting in the sixth race, successive Exactors paid $209.60, $249.50 and $444.40.

Adanacs show life

Esquimalt Legion hopes to use Coquitlam Adanacs for a springboard when the two Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League squads meet at 8 tonight in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

A triumph for the Ken Alexander-coached Legion lads would put them back in the running for third spot.

But the Adanacs, who have been languishing in the cellar, showed signs of life Monday by edging Richmond Roadrunners 11-10 at Coquitlam Sports Centre.

Victory moved Coquitlam to within three points of Esquimalt.

Geordie Dean and Dan Gamble scored three goals each to lead the Coquitlam attack.

Bob Johnston had four goals for Roadrunners, who trailed 6-4 at the end of the first period and 9-6 after 40 minutes. Greg Jensen added a pair.

Lumberworld collected two victories in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League play Monday at Lambrick Park.

The defending-champions defeated cellar-dwelling Quadra Warehouse 8-4 in a regularly-scheduled game and swamped the same club 20-7 in the completion of a game suspended May 20.

Dan Vangylswyk connected for two hits on three trips to the plate in the scheduled win and Russ Holmes bashed a two-run single in the third inning to power in what proved to be the winning run.

Impressive effort by Wilmshurst

Clear the track because Victoria's next standout middle-distance running champion may be developing at Fairburn elementary school.

Ken Wilmshurst was an impressive record-breaker in the annual Greater Victoria elementary track and field meet held at Centennial Stadium.

The 12-year-old from Fairburn set a scorching pace to lop almost four seconds off the old record in the "A" boys' 800 metres. His time was 2:12.2 compared to the former mark of 2:16.0 set by Matt Montgomery four years ago.

Wilmshurst finished a whopping 6.6 seconds ahead of second-place Steve Sajn of Gordon Head.

The only other individual record run was achieved by Brent Polischuk of Campus View, who tied the mark of 13.4 seconds in the 11 boys "A" 100-metre sprint.

Fairburn, anchored by Wilmurst, tied the 12 boys' 4x100 relay mark of 52.9 and Campus View equalled the 56.5 record in the 11 boys' 4x100 relay.

Other winners were:

Boys 100 metres — Jeremy Junio, Bill Nahal, Ken Winter, Ian McMurtrie, David Houston, Craig Watson, Nelson Simoes, Peter Karpa, Craig Burns, Rob Heppell, Paul Johnson, Martin Horak, Tasso Koulelis, Gordon Skillings.

Girls 100 — Linda Thicket, Pat Mason, Carolyn Henderson, Barbara Bailey, Heather Battison, Sandra Rubido, Kathy Mueller, Andrea Campbell, Lisa Brownlee, Monica O'Gorman, Elisa Hansen, Angela McVie, Ran Deen Hartley, Lindsay Davidson, Naomi Wynmar.

A double threat, you say, but not the first for city

When was the last time Victoria had two campaigners in the Canadian Open?

A good question, asked after Bob Beauchemin finished second in the Ontario Open on Sunday and earned a berth in this week's field at Glen Abbey. Colwood's Dave Mick, the Island Open and City Amateur champion, made it earlier as one of the exemptions allowed the host Royal Canadian Golf Association.

At any rate, the answer to the question is 11 years ago. Bill Wakeham, now at Cowichan, and the late Vaughan Trapp, then an assistant to father Paul at Victoria Club, both played in the 1968 Open.

Both finished in the money. As a matter of fact, Vaughan was in excellent position to startle the golf world. He shared fourth place with Argentine's Roberto de Vicenzo at the halfway mark.

The Lower Island's (zone one) team in the B.C. Amateur July 4-7 will consist of Mick, Lawrie Kerr, Dave Donaldson and Don Gowan, the top four finishers in the City Amateur.

The zone team competition is new and stirs some controversy because it opens a door for players who might not otherwise qualify for the provincial tournament.

The B.C. Amateur has been restricted to players with handicaps of four or less. If you make the zone team, say with a six handicap, you automatically draw a berth in the provincial test. The exemption doesn't sit too well with four handicappers who may not make it because their entry was not accepted.

They'll sit on the sidelines while a six handicapper from Quesnel or a nine-handicapper from Hazelton plays because he made his zone team.

The idea, however, is to stir interest in the under-developed zones. The team concept simply gives each zone four spots, and that's not a bad idea.

Shutout win the clincher

Royal Colwood players didn't leave anything to chance as they applied the clincher Monday.

The six members of the Royal Colwood team — Jon Mahovlic, Bob Lean, Bruce Barlow, Neil O'Leary, Guy Spencer and Paul Ash — fashioned a 9-0 shutout victory over visiting Gorge Vale to nail down the Joe Pryke Trophy, emblematic of the Victoria and District Junior-Inter-Club Golf League championship.

The shutout gave Royal Colwood 36 points, four more than the total compiled by runner-up Victoria, which finished the season with a 7-2 decision at Glen Meadows. Uplands collected third place with a 7-2 win over visiting Cedar Hill.

THE NAME GAME®

Starting Saturday, June 23rd in the Victoria Times and Sunday, June 24th in The Daily Colonist

WIN! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES GIVEN AWAY EVERY OTHER WEEK!

WIN! GRAND PRIZE DRAW!
TRIP FOR TWO TO HAWAII BY WARDAIR!

IT'S SIMPLE!
Read the rules below, keep them handy. The first game, which will appear in the weekend papers, will give you the first group of letters . . . your cue to get started and play The Name Game. You could be one of the FIRST WINNERS!

THE NAME GAME RULES AND PROCEDURES

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print you name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday and Sunday and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All correctly completed entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to The Name Game will be final.

New Jazz leader

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Former Houston Rockets' coach Tom Nissalke has been named head coach of Utah Jazz in the National Basketall Association.

Nissalke, 44, led the Rockets to a 47-35 record and an Eastern Conference playoff berth. He returns to Utah where he coached the Utah Stars of the now-defunct American Basketball Association before the franchise folded in December, 1975.

Nissalke, former head coach of Seattle SuperSonics, replaces former Jazz coach Elgin Baylor, who handled the team through last season and had two years remaining on his contract. The Jazz ownership was granted permission earlier this month by the NBA governors to move the franchise to Utah.

Key players miss Inter-club action

These movie-goers just want to be scared

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — People are packing movie theatres hoping they will be frightened out of their seats by a new science-fiction film called Alien.

Having rung up huge box office successes with the scare tactics of Jaws and the science-fiction gadgets of Star Wars, Hollywood decided the best recipe for another winner was to mix the two.

Audiences seem to agree. In its first two weeks of showing in 136 theatres, ticket sales for Alien have totalled $11.6 million, $1.6 million more than the film cost to make, an official at 20th Century-Fox studio said.

It will open in Japan in two weeks and will be seen in Europe in September.

Reports that people have rushed from movie theatres screaming, have fainted or have simply retired to the restrooms so far have not hurt box-office receipts.

The story line of Alien is simple. A spaceship returning home from a routine mission takes on board an alien. The sole aim of the monster is apparently to eat all seven crew members, including the shapely heroine, Sigourney Weaver.

The first shock to the audiences comes about 20 minutes after the film starts and from then on it is one horror scene after another. There is little relief, even in the ending.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

In bridge, as in war, interfering with enemy communications sometimes produces a victory that could otherwise not be scored. Here is a case that shows how declarer can tip the scales in his own favor by making good use of a communication-breaking play. The deal occurred in a national championship and declarer was Richard Freeman, of Atlanta, Quiz Kid star of radio a generation ago.

West led the king of clubs and Freeman (South) won with the ace. It was apparent that the only real threat to the contract was the possibility of a club ruff, but instead of leading a trump to stop this, Freeman led the jack of diamonds at trick two!

The direct effect of this play was that the contract could no longer be defeated. The only tricks declarer eventually lost were a heart, a diamond and a club.

But let's suppose that South had led a trump at trick two, as most declarers in Freeman's shoes probably would have done. In that case, the contract would have gone down one against proper defence.

West would take his ace of trumps, cash the queen of clubs, lead a low diamond to East, and ruff the club return to score the fourth trick for the defence. Furthermore, this series of plays by East-West would not have been hard to find.

West would naturally assume that East, for his four diamond bid, had the king of that suit — and East would assume that West's underlead of the ace of diamonds after cashing the queen of clubs at trick three was a clear-cut request for a club return.

The jack of diamonds lead at trick two cut a vital link in East-West's line of communications, and in one fell swoop disintegrated the defence.

Jimmy marks on victim's door

The door to a dead woman's apartment suite had two small jimmy marks above the knob, a B.C. Supreme Court murder trial jury was told Monday.

Sgt. Patrick Braiden, head of Victoria police identification section, was testifying at the first day of the trial of Tommy Ross Jr., 20, of Los Angeles, accused of first-degree murder following the Mother's Day death May 14, 1978, of Janice Forbes, 26.

Braiden said he arrived at the Queens Avenue apartment building, observed the jimmy marks on the door to the woman's suite, and took photographs of the suite. He was to continue his testimony today.

The first witness was Const. Robert Raappana who said he was on patrol when he received a call to go to the apartment at 4:35 p.m.

The manager of the building unlocked the door to the woman's suite and they went inside.

Raappana said he found a woman lying in the bedroom on the floor between the bed and the north wall, face down, wearing jeans, a shirt and a light tan leather jacket.

Her wrists were tied behind her back and a belt was knotted against her right ankle and extending to her neck, causing the body to be bow-shaped with the head off the floor.

Her neck was warm but her wrists were cold. He cut the knitted belt with a knife but couldn't find any pulse in her neck.

He said a stereo was playing.

Raappana said he found a shoe at the entrance to the bedroom and a shoe at the entrance to the bathroom and a piece of material near the bed similar to the material which tied the wrists.

There was a bruise on the right side of the woman's neck. From photographs, he said there were some bruises on her right knee but he didn't recall them at the time.

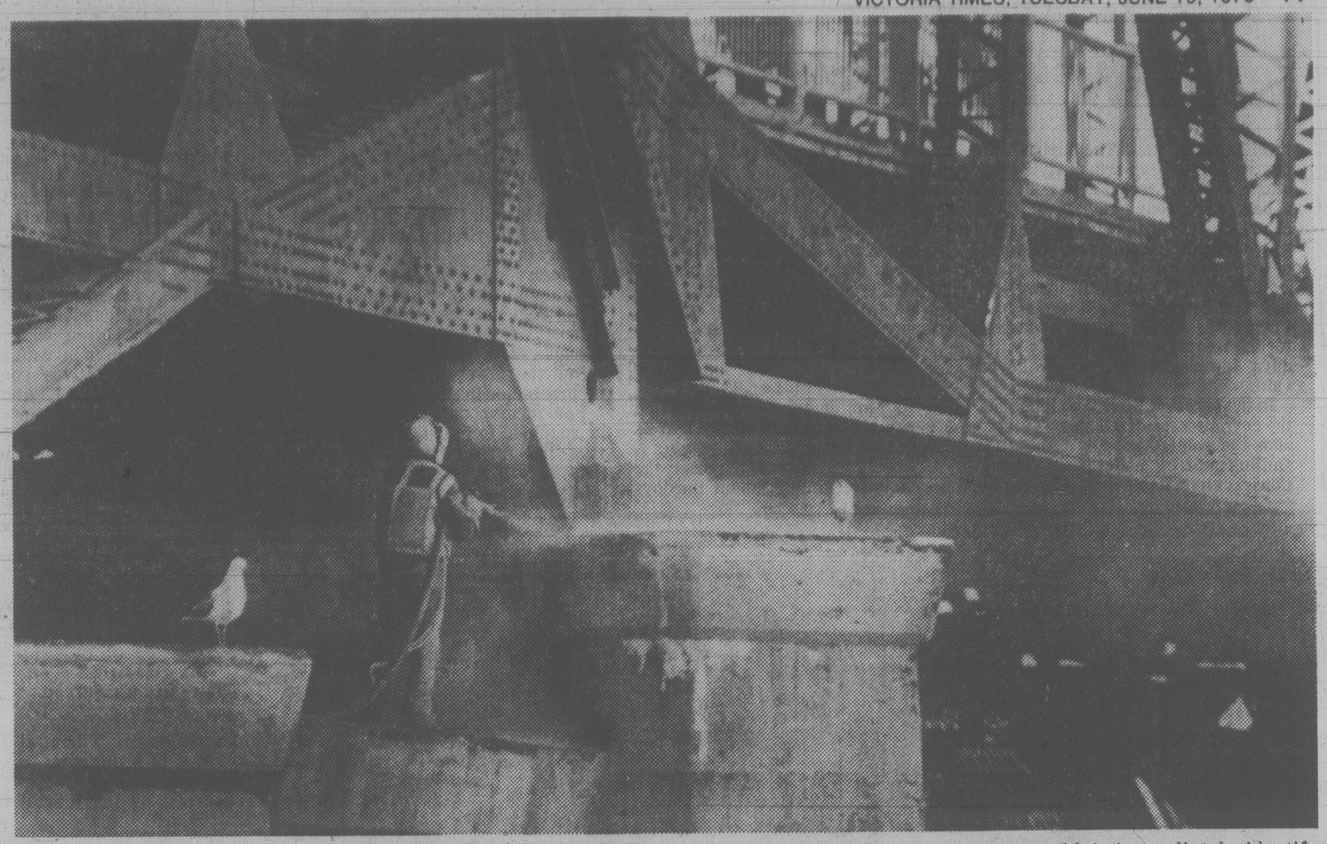

The mattress on the bed was a few inches off the boxspring, away from the body, and there was a pile of clothes on the bed.

Prior to the jury's selection, Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane told members of the jury panel the defence was concerned because of earlier publicity and wanted to be sure the jurors chosen will be unaffected and will give a verdict based on the evidence heard in court and nothing else.

He asked any of the 83 members of the jury panel to come forward before selection if they felt they cannot be impartial. None stepped forward.

The prosecution's case is being presented by Richard Law and J.W. Anderson. Ross is represented by Douglas Christie, assisted by Rick Bronson.

Law told the jury the prosecution expects it will take two weeks to present its case.

GULL GOGGLES should be worn by this cousin of Jonathan Livingston Seagull, who risks eye injury while supervising sandblasting operation on the concrete piers of Johnson Street Bridge. Times photographer John McKay couldn't immediately identify the species but figured he must be some kind of booby. The sandblaster is quite accustomed to his feathered friend.

Before the judge

A 37-year-old man who has spent only about nine months of the last 10 years "on the street" was sent back to jail again Monday despite his requests that he be placed under psychiatric care.

Judge William Ostler told Marvin Lamont, recently released from jail, that there was no precedent that allowed him to remand him directly to the Eric Martin Institute or Riverview as requested. Only the corrections branch could do that once he had arrived in the penal system, Ostler said.

The judge sentenced Lamont to two years after he pleaded guilty to a indecently assualting a female Wednesday in the 2300-block Cadboro Bay.

Lamont met the woman at a downtown bus stop and sat beside her on the bus to Oak Bay where they got off. The assault took place a short time later.

Lamont told the court he had difficulty relating to people and wanted help in that area.

Judge Blake Allan ordered a pre-sentence report for a 23-year-old man who pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and theft on June 9 at Sears.

Gabor Varga of 634 McCaskill was found inside the store by maintenance staff. When police arrived they found him in possession of 65 rings valued at $4,647.87 taken from the store's jewelry counter.

"I'd just come from a party and was very drunk and not in control of myself," Varga said.

He was remanded in custody until July 16.

A 17-year-old Sidney high school student was remanded until July 6 for a pre-sentence report after pleading guilty to possession of stolen jewelry valued at more than $3,500. He was released on $500 bail.

John Timmers of 730 Birch was taken into custody Saturday night on a drinking charge and later made statements in connection with several break-ins in the area.

A search of his bedroom produced about $2,500 in stolen jewelry and Timmers subsequently told police of another cache which included $1,000 in jewelry.

A 58-year-old former Ontario man was given a conditional discharge and placed on 60 days probation after he pleaded guilty to wilful damage in connection with a June 9 incident at the apartment of his estranged wife.

John McElroy of 1204 Yates had gone to his wife's suite in the same building in which he resided and forced open a door in an attempt to recover money he claimed was owing him.

Judge Allan told McElroy he was fortunate he hadn't been charged with something worse.

He was ordered to pay $75 for the door damage.

The secretary has taken charge

The secretary has become the boss at a unique six-shop pool of office and legal services which opened Monday across the street from the Law Courts.

In charge is Debbie Jelich, who has expanded Executive Secretarial Services from a livingroom operation into a multi-faceted business after only two years.

While she was doing typing chores in her home during the past 24 months, sometimes working well after midnight, she was saving her money and dreaming of going into business for herself.

The dream was realized Monday when she officially opened her offices on the third floor of 848 Courtney, where she is sub-leasing to five associated firms.

Her company offers secretarial services as well as job placement for executive secretaries. The other five companies will range from engineering to legal services, all in offices opening on to one central room.

The idea is to offer a range of services to the public in one central location, she said.

At the same time, the pooling arrangement saves money for those sub-leasing.

Pooling arrangements are not new — doctors, dentists and realtors have been using them for years. But this is believed to be the first one in this area involving a variety of occupations.

Starting the business wasn't that difficult, she said.

All it took was a little planning, a lot of hard work, and a good line of credit.

Only time will tell how well it will succeed but in the meantime she is regarding it as the answer to a dream.

New ministers keep stumbling into secret stamp

OTTAWA (CP) — The boyish-looking man in the prep-school style navy blazer and red striped tie was having a hard time convincing the airport car rental agent that he was travelling on official government business.

"I'll have to see some identification," the woman said tersely as Perrin Beatty, 29, minister of state for the treasury board for only a few days, fumbled through his wallet in vain.

"She gave me the car," Beatty reported. "I was even wearing the same tie."

Then there was the red-faced Mountie on Parliament Hill who yelled at the driver parking his battered 11-year-old car, reliably reported to be "the pukiest color of green you'd ever want to see."

"Get that heap out of here," the Mountie bellowed. "This space is reserved for the minister."

"But I am the minister," protested Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn as he climbed out of his car.

Savoring their ascent to power, the new ministers laugh about the joys and minor irritations of learning their way around the corridors of power.

Old habits die hard, and some ministers say they're suffering from an identity crisis.

Elmer MacKay, one-time parliamentary muckraker and now minister of regional economic expansion, said: "I woke up this morning thinking today's the perfect day to overthrow the government. Then I remembered — that's us."

For former opposition members accustomed to having at least some free time for their families, the 18-hour days of briefings by public servants, cabinet meetings and cabinet committee meetings have come as a shock.

"I really haven't had time to determine how I feel," said Public Works Minister Erik Nielsen, one of only three members of Prime Minister Clark's cabinet who was an MP when the Conservatives last held power under John Diefenbaker.

But it is satisfying, Nielsen said, finally to be able to investigate matters the Conservatives considered suspicious, instead of having to rely on Liberal ministers for answers.

The biggest shock of getting into office was "finding out all the things we said were wrong were really true," said Beatty, paraphrasing former U.S. president John Kennedy.

Another surprise, he said, was the bureaucracy's preoccupation with secrecy.

"I wish I could tell you what was the first confidential document they sent me," Beatty told a reporter.

"You'd burst a seam laughing. It really illustrates their penchant for stamping everything 'secret.' "

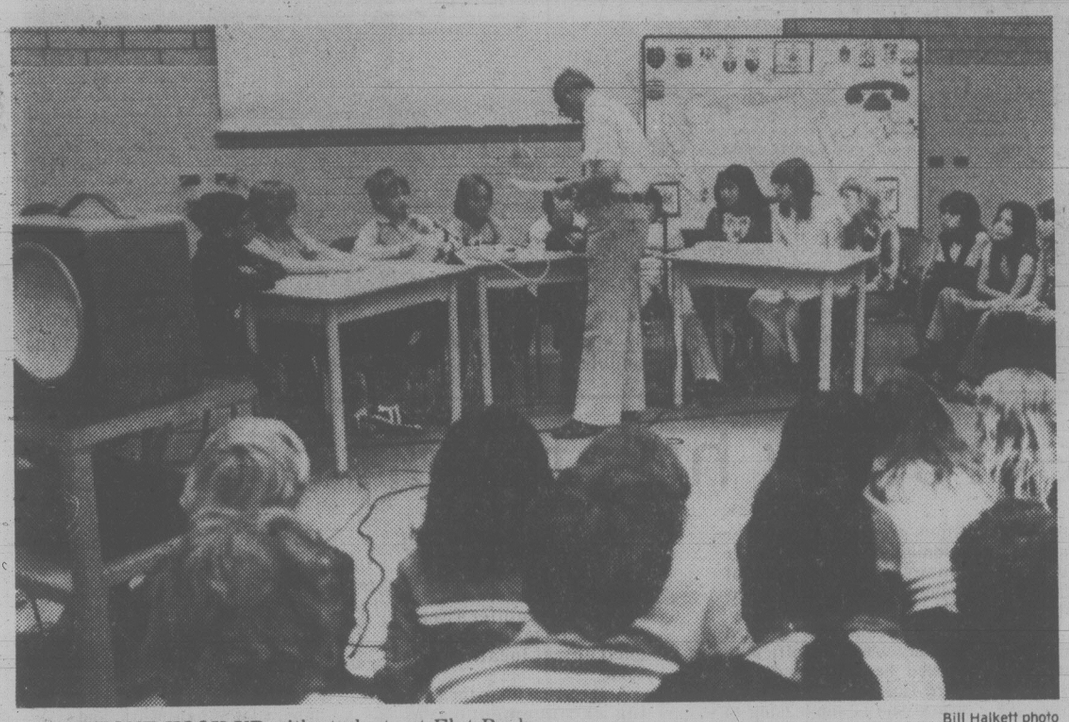

After an enormous safe materialized in his office "like the obelisk from 2001," Beatty said he began checking with the bureaucrats to find out which documents he could take away — even to cabinet meetings.

Nielsen said he has been surprised at how much information from his department was withheld by the Liberal government "for no legitimate reason."

The Liberals were almost paranoid about keeping things secret, Nielsen said.

Clark has promised to introduce within six months a freedom-of-information law to give citizens greater access to government information. He has also promised an overhaul of the Official Secrets Act, under which government documents are classified.

"The sooner the better," says Beatty, glancing nervously over his shoulder.

Bureaucrats hashed it out

By JIM ROBB
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — An attempt by Department of National Revenue bureaucrats to make hash of gefilte fish has been foiled by the federal Tariff Board.

In May, 1977, customs officials classified a shipment of gefilte fish under "vegetable pastes and hash" when it was imported from the United States by Hahamovitch Kosher Imports, Inc., of Montreal.

Just-published proceedings of a Tariff Board hearing show it took expert testimony by a senior executive of Manischewitz Food Products Corp., of New Jersey, to get the customs ruling rescinded and the gefilte fish restored to its proper place under "fish, prepared or preserved" in the customs regulations.

Arnold Rosner, of Manischewitz, described gefilte fish as primarily carp, whitefish, pike or mullet. But it also contains egg whites, matzo meal, salt, onion powder, pepper, monosodium glutamate and water, he revealed.

Rosner told the hearing the product that winds up in large glass jars on the grocer's shelf starts out as minced frozen fish that is defrosted, ground up, then blended with the other ingredients.

The mix is extruded into balls, blanched and bottled in a vegetable broth.

A representative of the Hahamovitch firm argued that vegetables made up only 2.4 per cent of the finished product, which was not a paste because paste was usually a smoother product, and it was not hash since that usually involves recooking.

A lawyer for the department of national revenue conceding the product might not be a paste, countered by arguing that the gefilte fish contained matzo flour, which was a vegetable product and contained other vegetables, making it similar to "vegetable hash."

But the tariff board ruled that, as gefilte fish cannot be found to consist of small pieces of fish or vegetables, because it is thoroughly minced up, it is not a "hash or similar product.

Union, union, read all about it!

SAINT JOHN (CP) — A group of newspaper carriers for this city's two dailies, the morning Telegraph-Journal and The Evening Times Globe, adopted a constitution and elected a complete executive Monday as it continued its bid to become a union.

The Saint John Newspaper Carriers Association also launched a drive to sell $1 memberships to the majority of estimated 300 to 400 carriers.

Association secretary Bob Merzetti said it will be up to the New Brunswick Labor Relations Board, in ruling on the certification bid, to decide whether the carriers are independent contractors as the company maintains or employees as the association maintains.

Gift to Pro-Can 'not political'

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada chairman Bryce Mackasey said Monday the airline has "no intention" of asking for the return of a controversial $50,000 contribution it made to an umbrella group fighting Quebec independence last year.

Pierre Jeanniot, vice-president for marketing, said during the weekend that Air Canada granted the money to the Pro-Canada Foundation in October, 1978, in the belief that it was a non-political gesture aimed at promoting Canada.

But this year Pro-Canada's goals appear to have taken on a more partisan flavor, he said, suggesting that the airline might consider asking for a reimbursement.

Mackasey, who had just returned Monday from a Paris air show with airline president Claude Taylor, said Jeanniot had expressed "personal opinions" and the company's directors believe they were right to donate the money.

The money was given "in the utmost good faith".

THE MYSTERY of the hot, green blob that landed on the picnic table at Traven Matchett's home in Mississauga, Ont., appears to have been solved. Technicians at the Ontario environment ministry say the unidentified object has "all the makings of a frisbee." Ministry officials said they suspect that someone stuck a burning substance inside a frisbee and sent it hurtling into the air. Matchett said his daughter, Donna, 19, was working in the backyard near the table when the flaming, green object landed. An orange-reddish glow came from the top of the blob. His daughter doused it with a garden hose, he said, adding that it could have been something from outer space, either Skylab or a Chinese satellite that began breaking up over northern Michigan.

Crombie vows fluoride probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister David Crombie has promised a full inquiry into reports that fluoride pollution from a U.S. aluminum smelter has been killing cattle, vegetation and impairing Indian health on Cornwall Island.

"No one disagrees on the need for a study and no one disagrees . . . that the population is potentially at risk," Crombie said Monday in an interview.

Crombie said specific proposals on how the study should be done, by whom and for how much money will be ready in a few days. He added that he will visit the 1,300 Mohawks on the island, located in the St. Lawrence River between the U.S. and Cornwall, Ont., later this week.

Reynolds Metals Co. of Massena, N.Y., has been accused by environmentalists and health officials as the source of the fluoride pollution. Company spokesmen have repeatedly denied responsibility but the firm has been paying U.S. farmers near the plant compensation for cattle stricken with fluorosis.

The issue flared when a U.S. pathologist from Cornell University reported that fluoride pollution from the Reynolds plant, which began operating since 1959, was killing cows on the island.

Dr. Lennart Krook completed a two-year study and blamed Reynolds for reducing the number of cattle to 177 from 364 during that time.

"The cattle population is suffering from severe, chronic fluoride poisoning," Krook said in an April report. "The plant has been designated as the major source of fluoride emissions impacting Cornwall Islands."

"There's obviously no way the human population can escape all that pollution either," he added.

Those findings were followed by reports last week that Indian children from the St. Regis island reserve showed signs of mild fluoride poisoning.

Dr. William Burns, a U.S. government dental officer, confirmed that some of the 152 Indian children had stained and brittle teeth — the same symptoms displayed by cows that died.

Reynolds says it has been compensating U.S. farmers for stricken cows since 1970.

Indians probably would have received the same deal had they allowed the firm to conduct tests on the island located in the St. Lawrence River near Cornwall, Ont., a company spokesman said.

Lawyer Ross Brown of Morrisburg, N.Y., said in an interview that the payments were the result of an out-of-court settlement between the company and 22 farmers located nearby.

"We had proof that the cattle were losing teeth and not milking anywhere as much as they should have been," he said.

"It was settled before it ever got to a jury."

The company still monitors those farms and buys any cattle showing signs of fluorosis, although it never takes possession of the animals.

The company wanted to make a similar deal with the St. Regis Indians but the band council banned it from conducting tests on the island or talking to individual Indian farmers, the spokesman said.

Noel Starblanket, president of the 300,000-member National Indian Brotherhood, said: "Reynolds is saying we're not going to clean up the environment, we're going to keep on killing cattle."

Aluminum supplies dwindle

MONTREAL (CP) — A strike that has shut three Alcan Aluminium Ltd. smelters in Quebec has begun to affect aluminum supplies in the United States.

The company's U.S. subsidiary, Alcan Corp., declared force majeure Wednesday, meaning it cannot respect its commitments to customers.

The strike, now in its third week, has reduced the company's ingot production by 60 per cent.

U.S. customers will be forced to look to the free market, where prices are higher, for the aluminum they need, an investment analyst said.

Saskatchewan cabinet shuffle

REGINA (CP) — Three veteran ministers were dropped from the Saskatchewan cabinet in a shuffle announced Monday.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ed Whelan and Neil Byers, minister responsible for the department of northern Saskatchewan, are gone from the cabinet. Adolph Matsalla, minister of tourism and renewable resource, had his previously announced resignation from the cabinet become official with Monday's changes.

Reg Gross, a farmer representing Morse constituency, enters the cabinet as minister of tourism and renewable resources. Murray Koskie, a lawyer representing Quill Lakes for the NDP, becomes minister of social services.

Two rookie MLAs were given cabinet posts. Doug McArthur, a former career civil servant in the provincial government, was given the twin posts of education and continuing education. Gerry Hammersmith, an educationist and former consultant to the federation of Saskatchewan Indians, was made minister responsible for northern Saskatchewan.

Ned Shillington gave up education to McArthur but continues as minister responsible for culture.

Joy-ridden 'dozer bulls into baking

EDMONTON (CP) — City police have charged a man in connection with a bulldozer rampage which caused $200,000 damage to a west-end city Co-op shopping centre around midnight Saturday.

The bulldozer had been left with the keys in it at a nearby construction site. Someone started the machine and drove it around the parking lot, knocking down a light standard and ramming it into the wall of the centre's service station.

Then the driver aimed the bulldozer at the shopping centre itself. It ran unmanned through the wall and plowed 30 metres into the store before coming to rest in the bakery department.

Brian Killeen, 19, of Edmonton, has been charged with theft over $200 and mischief.

Plenty of oil but no beer?

EDMONTON (CP) — Beer-loving Albertans could face a dry summer. Employees at Edmonton's Molsons Breweries Ltd. voted 89 per cent in favor of strike action Monday.

No strike date was set, said a spokesman for the Canadian Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers Union, local 204, representing the 70 workers.

The brewery produces about half the beer consumed in Alberta.

One-acre lots urged in Highlands

The 45-acre minimum lot freeze in the Highlands should be lifted immediately and be replaced with a minimum one-acre lot size, says Christina Rainey, president of the East Highlands Community Society.

The Capital Regional District is considering rezoning the East Munn's Road and Fork Lake area to five-acre density with a two-acre minimum lot size.

Rainey, who has a 36-acre property at 2,100 Munn's Road, says the society's 70 members agree that the proposed zoning will alleviate hardship problems for people in their area who have been unable to sell or subdivide because of the freeze but it is only a "band-aid" solution and does not help residents in other parts of the Highlands.

"It's only trying to quiet a few people," Rainey says of the proposed zoning.

She says East Highlands residents are also concerned about a trailways plan being prepared by regional planners. The plan suggests trails follow the Highlands' waterways and ridges.

She says property-owners have not been consulted about whether or not they want some of their land used for trails.

Dr. Bob McMinn, who owns 340 acres on Millstream Lake Road, was a member of the executive of the Highlands Community Association when the organization applied for and received a youth employment grant for students to help the regional planning department carry out the study on a trail system.

Taking the right course: McMinn

He considers the regional district is going the right route by drawing up a trail plan and zoning individual areas, rather than having an over-all zoning.

He says the CRD is attempting to alleviate any hardship cases and at the same time ensure that careful planning will keep the unique quality of the Highlands for future generations.

McMinn says legislation under the Recreational Land Greenbelt Encouragement Act, which is not currently being used, could compensate property-owners in greenbelt areas with rebates in taxes.

McMinn, while conceding that the CRD has no authority to buy land for trail purposes, also says the Municipal Act provides that on subdivision of land, such as in the Highlands, five per cent of the property can be required for parkland.

He says careful planning is essential if future generations are to be able to enjoy walking and hiking in the Highlands, as he and his family have been able to do in the past.

He said subdivision is inevitable in the Highlands and if no trail plan is in effect residents will eventually be locked into their own properties.

The CRD placed the 45-acre freeze on the Highlands in June, 1974, when the NDP government was proposing a large housing project in the Highlands. The housing project was never carried through and now the provincial government owns 3,000 acres in the Highlands.

Rainey said this land plus the three B.C. Hydro right-of-ways that run through the area are the logical sites for trails. She points out the Highlands is already surrounded by parks.

Rainey says East Highlands residents are also concerned that opening trails will lead to an even higher risk of fires. To protct themselves, East Highlands residents finance the operation of a volunteer fire department with two fire trucks.

Should the provincial government decide to sell the acreage it owns in the Highlands, Rainey questions how the CRD will be able to control development.

She points out that Highlands residents, many of them facing financial problems because of the inability to sell their property, are regulated about what they can build or sell. But there are no such restrictions on the government.

While the government would routinely consult the CRD, it has the power to override the CRD if it wishes, she added.

No hearing prior to freeze

Rainey notes the 45-acre freeze was slapped on without holding a public hearing. "Why does it need so many public hearings to remove it," she asks.

Because of the freeze, banks are reluctant to approve mortages on Highlands properties and buyers are wary, she says.

While she says she is taxed on all her 36 acres, 5¾ acres of that land is a Hydro right-of-way for transmitting power to Sidney, which isolates six to 12 of the remaining acres.

Lifting the freeze, she adds, will not mean that one-acre lots will automatically be established because the topography of the area prevents this in many cases.

Rainey adds that the CRD has ultimate control, in any case, because any plans for development must be approved by the regional board.

Rainey has her own property for sale but the freeze has killed any chance of success, she says. The only bid was from an Alberta source that wanted to build a mobile home park but such developments are not being considered by the CRD until such time as the controversial issue is resolved.

She repudiates claims that Highlands residents want to subdivide in order to make a killing, pointing out that Highlands properties are on the market at $5,000 for five acres while just across the border in Saanich five-acre lots are priced between $79,000 and $89,000.

Hearings planned on oil superport

Capital Regional District board chairman Murray Glazier says he will organize information hearings on the proposed oil superport at Port Angeles.

Glazier returned Sunday night from hearings in Port Angeles and meetings with interested groups.

Among those he talked to were Port Angeles' Mayor Samuel Haguewood; Michael Doherty, co-ordinator of the Clallam County oil port commission; Nancy Turner, spokesman for the community group, No Oil Port Committee, and Gerry Smith, public relations officer for the Northern Tier Pipeline.

Glazier said those he contacted in Port Angeles had willingly agreed to attend any information hearings in Victoria.

"We need information on the table," Glazier said. "We need to know what the proposals are and how they affect us."

Glazier said fisheries officials and department of transport personnel, who would be responsible for the marine traffic, would be among those invited to attend the information hearings.

Neighbors object so no pub

North Saanich aldermen have rejected a proposal for a neighborhood pub at the junction of Pat Bay Highway and Amity and Lochside drives.

The proposal had been made by William Ratcliffe and Gordon Hulme Ltd.

Aldermen bowed to pressure of residents in the area who submitted a 120-name petition opposing the idea to council's committee A on Monday night.

Residents said the pub would reduce property values, create noise and invade their privacy.

"This area is eminently unsuited for this kind of enterprise," Mayor George Westwood concurred.

Vantreights ordered to do better basin job

The sons of Saanich Ald. Geoff Vantreight will be told to make a better job of demolishing and removing a concrete drainage basin they built illegally on municipal property at Panama Flats.

Saanich council issued the order Monday night after being informed that an earlier order for complete removal and cleanup by June 30 had not been fully complied with.

Council made it clear that the municipal land adjoining Interurban Road is to be restored fully to its original condition.

Municipal engineer Clifford Warren said in a report that although the concrete reservoir had been partially demolished, the concrete would still be exposed about two feet when the water level was at its lowest in nearby Colquitz Creek.

The basin and the ditches leading into and out of it were about four to five feet below the creek's low-water mark and would therefore retain that depth of water when the creek was running at its lowest level.

Warren noted that up to 600 feet of ditch could be permanently flooded to a depth of four or five feet, posing a safety hazard.

Ian and Michael Vantreight built the drainage system for a potato-farming operation.

Their failure to seek the municipality's permission before installing the reservoir caused a major row last November, involving calls for a provincial government inquiry and allegations of conflict of interest on the part of Ald. Vantreight.

At the time, the alderman was chairman of council's bylaw enforcement committee.

In other business Monday night, council decided to:

— Support an application to the B.C. Land Commission to have Fatt's Poultry Farm, in the North Quadra area, included in the Agricultural Land Reserve;

—Designate an area between Cadillac and the Gorge for home improvement loans and grants under the federal government's Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP). About 90 homes are eligible.

PetroCan likely topic

Bennett had no official statement on topics for discussion at the meeting but there is little doubt PetroCan and its holdings in Westcoast Transmission will be high on the agenda.

Bennett is on record as wanting PetroCan, the federal Crown agency which controls 32 per cent of Westcoast, to give up its shares at cost to the B.C. Resources Investment Corp.

Clark has pledged to divest the federal government of PetroCan by selling it to the private sector.

LEEKE
. . . fireplace hazard

A resolution requesting the banning of steel fireplace chimneys was endorsed Monday night by Oak Bay council's fire committee.

The action followed a report from Chief Fred Leeke that the chimneys are hazardous, and their use is being discouraged in the municipality.

The resolution will be submitted to the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Leeke noted recent changes to the national building code permit either asbestos-insulated or triple-walled steel chimneys of approved design to be used in place of masonry. Usually they are boxed into a false plywood chimney.

A problem with factory-built chimneys was the build-up of creosote, he said.

This was caused by serveral factors, such as incomplete combustion as a result of airtight heaters and condensation in exposed metal chimneys.

Sensible clothes for fall

Willi Smith's new 'cheerleader' look

By BERNADINE MORRIS

As spring unfurls outdoors, fall fashions are being paraded in the showrooms of New York's Seventh Avenue, where American designers, unlike their fantasy-prone European counterparts, are keeping a clear eye on the dividing line between believable and imaginative clothes.

The new-season offerings have so far ranked high in credibility.

The showings include many by established designers who have made new connections this time.

Donald Brooks, for instance, who has worked for the theatre recently and designed custom-made clothes, scored with his first full-scale collection on Seventh Avenue in five years.

Bonnie Cashin, who had a brief sabbatical from designing the leathers and suedes that are her specialties, is back, under the auspices of Alex Gropper.

Halston enlarged his range to include sportswear for the first time and included cancan disco dresses, reflecting the athletic activities on the dance floor these days.

Pauline Trigere, one of the few women known for her coat designs, joined forces with Abe Schrader, a manufacturer of moderately priced clothes, to produce what will be known on the label as "A Trigere Coat."

Coats, along wth their constant fashion companions, suits, turned out to be the stars of the showings as tailored clothes staged a remarkable resurgence, probably in response to the demand of women everywhere for clothes that are sensible and enduring.

Brooks, who has been known for both glamor and casual clothes, contributed some spectacular coats in strong plaids with matching blanket-size stoles, as well as good-looking suits. Both types were highlighted by appliques, braid edgings, passementerie borders and frog closings. Along with mandarin collars and many elaborately quilted jackets, the details contributed to a strong Oriental look throughout the collection.

Even such stalwarts of the dress industry as Jerry Silverman, Adele Simpson and Mollie Parnis added to the flowering of tailored clothes. Silverman's tweeds and woolens were often touched with Ultrasuede or velvet and were fit ted close to the body.

Simpson's frequently had double-breasted closings with the buttons slanting toward each other in a slimming triangle effect at the waist.

Geoffrey Beene reaffirmed his support of contemporary casual clothes, which was so startling to Europeans when he introduced his collection in Milan last month. He avoided such design crutches as elaborately padded shoulders, knee-length hems and draped dresses in the manner of the 1940's, all of which were seized upon by designers abroad to give a semblance of fresh ideas.

Instead, there were clothes that moved with the body and did not either restrict it or reveal it in an unseemly way. While the cuts had obviously evolved from his work in recent seasons and had not veen copied from old fashion magazines, the key to his clothes was their relaxed air.

Still, it wouldn't be fashion without any fun and games, and Willi Smith was one of the designers who provided diversion. He presented his collection at the Tennis Institute here, on a tennis court, and he sprinkled it liberally with miniskirts to appeal to the young.

Some of them were removable, such as the "cheerleader" skirts, which snapped on over knitted polo shirts and matching footless tights, which obviously could be worn without them.

King of complainers gives some tips

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph Charell of New York is the world's champion complainer and is designated as such by the Guinness Book of World Records.

He is also author of a new self-help manual, How To Get The Upper Hand: Simple Techniques You Can Use To Win The Battles of Everyday Life.

Charell, 49, has an arsenal of strategies to help browbeaten consumers retaliate against what he calls "close encounters of the unkind."

Charell said in a recent interview that he is as "meek as a pussycat at home," but, "if I'm confronted with overbearing bureaucrats and incompetent service people who are flagrantly in the wrong, yes, I do become a tough customer.

"Never, though, do I become obnoxious or belligerent. If you lose control and go into hysterics, yelling, 'This is an outrage,' you've lost the battle.

"The trick is to get the ball in the other court without losing your cool, to make the other side realize you're no apathetic punching bag, and you're quite capable of outsmarting them."

Charell believes that women have been especially victimized, conditioned to believe it's unladylike to raise a fuss — but he thinks they're better equipped to master the subtle art of complaining.

"If you bluster or whine, you get the short end of the stick. To get the upper hand in the game of constructive complaining, you've got to use shrewdness and imagination and sometimes a certain guile.

"That's why I've adopted for my superconsumerism campaign the Brazilian proverb, 'He who does not have a dog to hunt with — must use a cat.'"

The master complainer said he was having a terrible time in Toronto because the town offered him so little to complain about.

"Your cab drivers, cops and waiters are the most courteous I've met in North America."

The only thing that irritated him was the sign on a city parking lot announcing that the company refuses to accept responsibility for mishaps due to its own negligence.

To outwit what he calls "the nettlesome dispensers of substandard goods and services," and to put a stop to computer errors on bills, one must reach the human behind the machine:

With pen or pencil, just punch out two or three of those computerized punch card marks, he said. It not only makes the victim feel good, it fouls up the system.

Write a message on the card in basic English explaining the error and return the bill, compelling the computer to reject the card and to ensure a person reads it. And in the case of a second erroneous bill, repeat the procedure, with "Final Notice" written in large letters.

Jack McCarter brings Victoria's history to life

Elizabeth Forbes

Spend an hour with John Y. (Jack) McCarter, at his Queen Anne Heights home, and you come away not only with knowledge of his interesting life, but also with many facts about the early growth of this city and of Vancouver.

He was born in 1886, shortly before his parents, William and Annie McCarter (because of a business slump on Vancouver Island) joined the John Taylor family in a move to Seattle where they hoped to find better conditions.

In the Puget Sound city, William McCarter worked with Taylor who had a portable sawmill, and the families lived side-by-side at the top of Yesler Way hill.

Six years later a similar business slump and a disastrous fire in Seattle, brought the two families back to Victoria, by then well into renewed economic growth.

Taylor opened a mill on Government Street, next to the B.C. Electric gas tanks. McCarter was associated with him and again the families built homes next to each other, on Government Street, north of Bay Street.

Looking back Jack McCarter remembers that street as a rough cobbled road.

He recalls seeing early wooden drain pipes torn up and replaced with cast iron ones at the corner of Johnson Street, where Goodacre's butcher store was located.

"Its hard to believe," he says, "but those old pipes were actually heavy tree trunks fitted one into the other and with four-inch holes bored through their cores."

He also remembers watching a three-horse steam fire engine tear along Government Street to many fires. And one time seeing the lead horse fall on the rough road and the other two quickly follow.

The young McCarter attended North Ward School and later the old Victoria High when E. B. Paul was principal and Sara Spencer and Joe Clearihue were students.

He went to Sunday School in First Presbyterian Church, then at the corner of Pandora and Blanshard Streets, and he was a member of the Boys Brigade, forerunner of the Boy Scout movement in Canada.

In his teens he was active in the James Bay Athletic Association (where he is now a life member) and became one of its outstanding oarsmen. He also joined the Fifth Regiment, as did many young men in pioneer families of his day.

By then the Taylor Mill had burned down, his father had retired and his twin brothers, Kenneth and Peter, had organized the McCarter Shingle Company, and built their mill on the Taylor site.

And Jack McCarter himself had started on his way to a successful career as an architect and structural engineer.

"My father had given me good grounding in estimating," he says. "I had spent time with Moore and Whittington and the Dominion Construction Company in order to learn the practical end of construction and I had studied drawing.

"I was ready, therefore, when the opportunity came to article with Thomas Hooper, one of the best — if not the best — architect in Victoria."

In 1910, when Hooper moved his office to Vancouver, McCarter went with him.

Over on the mainland he continued his interest in rowing and in sailing through the Royal Vancouver Yacht and Rowing Clubs.

He also signed up, during 1913-14, for a night-school course in navigation. And it was to prove extremely useful when, shortly afterward, the First World War was declared and a call went out from Rear-Admiral Storey at HMC Dockyard for qualified yachtsmen to form a company for service overseas.

"I was the first recruit accepted for that company," McCarter recalls, "and a group of my Vancouver sailing and rowing friends came along with me.

"We were sent to England for further training and then assigned various duties.

"My home base was Brightlingsea in the Thames estuary and most of my duties involved sub-chasing in the North Sea."

He stuck it out until January, 1919, when he developed stomach trouble and decided to contract out.

The year before McCarter had married a Scottish girl, Ann Gordon Urie, and by June, 1919, he and his wife were back in Vancouver.

Jack McCarter . . . living history

Shortly afterward he was appointed to the federal government's Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department, in charge of engineer training for hospital and vocational schools.

Then, in 1922, he resigned from that position, opened his own architect and structural engineering firm and, a year later took in a partner, George Nairne.

McCarter and Nairne went on from there to success after success.

The firm designed Spencer's department store, the medical-dental building, the Marine Building that now has heritage designation; restored and remodelled the old Vancouver Hotel and were consulting architects for the new Vancouver Hotel.

Other assignments included the Seaforth Armory, the main Vancouver federal building and the main post office, as well as banks and civic centres in Nelson and Kelowna and the hospital in Kamloops.

Jack McCarter retired in 1956 and for the next 20 years turned his energies and his efforts to fulfilling responsibilities on executive boards of various public and government organizations.

His wife died in 1971. That, and the fact the family home and garden in Vancouver had become too big to properly care for, hastened his decision to come back to Victoria for the rest of his days.

He and his daughter Joan returned here in 1976, bought the Frank Brown home on Queen Anne Heights and are now comfortably settled there.

Postscript — McCarter tells you with no little pride that his parents, William McCarter and Annie King McIntosh, were married on August 19, 1885, in the Yates Street home of William Templeman, founder of the Victoria Daily Times.

The young couple grew up and became engaged in the Scottish settlement of Almonte in Ontario.

William McCarter came to Victoria ahead of his fiancee. She followed shortly afterward, travelling on the first Southern Pacific train that crossed the continent to San Francisco.

With her was Mrs. William Templeman on her way to join her husband who had also preceded her to Victoria.

The two men, strangers to each other, met the young women when they reached Seattle.

There were introductions all around and they all returned to Victoria together.

The Templemans and the McCarters were firm friends from then on.

Fashion pressure injures feet

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A Lethbridge foot specialist says people are paying a price for their vanity.

Podiatrist Dr. Melvin S. Livengood says that in a period of a couple of months he treats 20 to 30 persons of all ages who sprain or tear ligaments after slipping on their heels.

A young girl hobbled into Livengood's office recently and said: "Help me doctor, I fell off my shoe."

A number of foot problems resulting from uncomfortable footwear take a while to manifest themselves, but can be just as painful and often more serious than a sprained ankle, he says.

Wearing high-heeled shoes can induce a slouching posture, a sway back and a duck walk when muscles in the foot are restricted in their natural movements, forcing the foot to point inward.

Many persons become toe walkers, having lost the ability to raise the front part of their foot.

Severe muscle cramps in the back of the leg are another result of wearing high-heeled shoes.

Livengood stresses that any problem in the foot is dramatically aggravated by wearing high-heeled shoes.

Plastic used in many of the cheaper shoes on the market in another major problem, he says.

Plastic shoes don't allow foot moisture to escape.

"I've had patients whose feet stink so bad they themselves can't stand it."

Increases in the number of cases of athletes' foot, a fungal infection, is directly attributable to plastics used in shoes, he says.

Plastic shoes also won't stretch, causing irritation to persons with corns.

Livengood compares the current style of shoes with the days when women wore corsets.

"They helped the ladies' appearance but caused internal physical problems. Social pressures often lead to habits which are of an unhealthy nature.

"Pharmacists are making a lot of money filling prescriptions I give patients for remedies for abused feet."

Common excuses for wearing uncomfortable footwear include "I only wear them when I'm going out" or "Nothing else would look right with today's styles."

One young woman insists she does feel comfortable wearing shoes with three-inch heels.

"It just takes time to get used to them," she says. "If I didn't feel comfortable wearing them, I wouldn't."

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

Is there any candy or gum that can be helpful in breaking the cigarette habit? — MISS J. V.

DEAR MISS V.:

Although there is no scientific explanation, a great many people have found that the taste of licorice is effective in reducing the need for a cigarette. Most smokers have themselves noted that, after eating or drinking, there is a particularly great desire to smoke a cigarette. At this time, licorice in candy or chewing gum form seems to modify that desire.

Licorice comes from the dried root of glycyrrhiza glabra. For many years it has been used for a variety of purposes, as an expectorant and even as a laxative.

Some people say they have actually been able to kick the smoking habit by substituting licorice chewing gum or lozenges. When swallowed in pill form, however, it does not serve this purpose.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH ... All baby sitters should be carefully interviewed and screened before trusting them with your young children. When there is pressure or an urgent need for a baby sitter, parents are sometimes careless about such scrutiny.

Similarly, baby sitters, too, need to be protected. Parents of baby sitters should be just as discriminating and make sure that their children are returned to the safety of their home after "sitting."

It's OK for the girl to make first move

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

DEAR DR. VICHERT: I used to get quite a few boy friends when I was 14 and 15 years old. But now that I am turning 17 I don't seem to get many at all. For the last two years I've had two. These boyfriends only lasted a month. A lot of guys stare at me. I stare back. They smile at me. But that's it. No one ever comes back and talks to me. What can I do to make them become acquainted with me, without making the first move?

ANSWER: It is quite permissable today for the girl to make the first move. What you need to take into consideration would be your own comfort in doing so. Though it is often expected that the boy will, or should, make the first move, boys often have some of the same difficulties girls do in trying to establish a relationship. Boys can feel shy, feel that the girl won't like them, not know what to talk about. They may even think that because the girl is attractive she must have lots of boyfriends and therefore they don't try and begin a relationship.

Basically most people want to be liked, and if you make an attempt at friendship with another person I would hope that they would understand and treat your "first move" with respect.

But there is more to a relationship than making the first move. Since you have had two relationships and they lasted only a month you should examine what happened so that it doesn't occur again. Don't make the first move to boost your ego, but make the first move because it is someone you want to get to know and care for.

DEAR DR. VICHERT: My boyfriend and I have been going together for about a year. My dad has planned a trip down south for a week. My boyfriend was very angry to hear this and said that if I went, he would break off with me. He thinks I'm going to fool around with some guy while I'm there. As you can see, he doesn't trust me. I really can't say I don't want to go, since it is a family trip. What should I do?

ANSWER: I think that you should go on the family trip. A relationship between two people should be based on trust, and if your boyfriend doesn't trust you on a family trip then his trust in you must be fairly low. I wonder what has happened between you that this is the case. If there is no reason for him to doubt you then it might be an idea to think about whether or not you want to continue a relationship with him.

If, on the other hand, he has just reason to believe that you might fool around, you need to give serious thought to yourown behavior and the quality of relationship that you have with your boyfriend.

It may be a good idea to take the trip and spend the time when you are apart to think about your relationship and what it means to each of you. I also don't think it is a good idea to let one person control another person in a relationship by threatening to end the relationship unless he gets his way.

DEAR DR. COTTER:

My older brother was always catered to. He was a dreamer, and mother always brought him down to earth to give him the real facts of life from her own experiences. He paid no room and board and didn't think he should help around the house.

My mother tried to make peace between a demanding father and my brother. He told her several times he did not need her or my dad. Then she told him, "If you hate this house so much, get out." So he did.

ANSWER: The simple way would be to say your brother was nothing but bad, or possessed by the devil. That would be the easy way out. That would be putting the blame on just one person or some force outside yourselves.

The truth is probably that the situation was bad all through: a demanding father, a mother always cutting down the boy's dreams, the boy reacting with uncontrollable resentment.

Nowhere, except in your own case, do you mention love. Probably at one time all three of them thought they loved each other, but their love was possessive.

Here's a very special wedding

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Enclosed please find my cheque for $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope for your booklet How to Have a Lovely Wedding.

This wedding has to be specially lovely, because it is for a special daughter and a special young man. Both were labelled retarded as children, but have overcome their handicap and grown into mature, capable people. (She is 31 and he is 29.) Both work and are able to manage their own affairs with a little assistance from both sets of parents.

Friends and relatives are so happy that this beautiful couple found each other. If they were growing up today I'm sure they would not be labelled retarded, but would be considered to have "learning disabilities." They will be married in a church because their religion means so much to both of them.

This is my first letter to Dear Abby, and the only advice I need now is how to make this wedding one of the loveliest our family has ever had.

REJOICING

DEAR REJOICING: Thank you for a beautiful letter bearing a message of hope for all "special" children and their families. May the happy couple enjoy all of God's blessings.

DEAR ABBY: I have two big, good-looking sons. One is 18 and the other is 16, but he's as big as his older brother. These boys have been fighting each other ever since they were old enough to swing their arms.

The 18-year-old just bought himself a second-hand car with his savings. He drove past his brother walking down the road and wouldn't even give him a lift.

The younger brother keeps his clothes in better shape, so the older one helps himself to his brother's clothes without asking. These boys fight and cuss like a couple of mule skinners.

Why can't they act like brothers?

MOM

DEAR MOM: They do. Cain and Abel.

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter from L. who couldn't figure out how come his wife knew how to make love so well if she was a virgin when she was married.

Well, I, too, was a virgin when I married buy my husband wasn't, and with all his previous experience, he didn't know peanuts compared to what I taught him!

I didn't learn it anywhere. I just followed my natural instincts and did whatever I felt was right. It seemed to come naturally.

I was blessed with parents who always showed affection for each other and never hid the fact that making love was a normal, healthy part of married life, so when I married it never occurred to me to hold back my sexual feelings. I just expressed them.

NEVER HAD A LESSON IN MY LIFE

DEAR ABBY: I called a young lady I know and invited her to attend a sailing regatta with me on the 4th of July. It's one of the nicest affairs of the season and entails the races in the afternoon, followed by dinner and dancing at the yacht club.

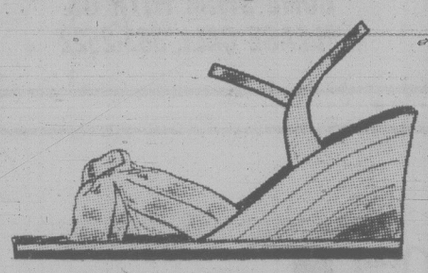

Instead of saying yes or no, she asked me to call her around the 25th of June and she'd tell me then.

Abby, if she turns me down, I'll have to ask somebody else, and by then all the best girls will have been asked. Why do you think she's waiting, and what should I do? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: She could be waiting to see if she gets a better offer. Call her and tell her if she can't give you a definite "yes" now, you'd like to call somebody else. (That should take the wind out of her sails.)

Tough task for Carter to sell SALT to Senate

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Jimmy Carter plunged into the biggest battle of his administration Monday night by saying he will campaign for Senate ratification of the SALT II treaty before every U.S. citizen who will listen.

Exactly 13 hours after signing the new strategic arms limitation treaty with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna, Carter went before Congress and appealled for "common sense" and for support of the pact.

SALT II, the new strategic arms limitation treaty, "will withstand the most severe scrutiny because it is so clearly in the interest of American security and world peace," he said.

Predicting it will become "the most debated treaty of our time, perhaps of all time," Carter said: "I will explain it throughout our nation to every American who will listen."

The latest head count in the 100-member Senate indicates that nothing less than an all-out campaign will gain the necessary two-thirds majority of 67 votes needed for ratification.

Alan Cranston, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said that about 35 senators firmly support SALT II, 20 to 25 are leaning in favor, and about 10 are undecided. At least 30 senators seem likely to vote against it.

Carter was interrupted a half-dozen times by light applause during his speech, but it seemed unlikely to shift sentiment one way or the other.

He opened on a stark and sombre note. "The truth of the nuclear age is that the United States and the Soviet Union must live in peace — or we may not live at all," he said.

But Carter's appeal to a joint session of Congress Monday night did nothing to diminish demands from critics for substantial changes in the treaty, which was negotiated during a seven-year period.

"I think the treaty has no chance of being passed without amendment," said Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee.

The harshest reaction came from Senator Henry Jackson (Dem. Wash.), a hard-line SALT opponent who called the president "foolish."

Strong support for the treaty came from Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem. Mass.), a frequent Carter critic on domestic issues.

"History will judge the Senate harshly if we fail to fulfil the promise now at hand," said Kennedy.

The president said SALT II is the most detailed, far-reaching and comprehensive treaty in arms-control history.

"Neither side obtained everything it sought," he said. "But the package that emerged is a carefully balanced whole."

Surplus U.N. funds probed

WASHINGTON (WP) — Two subcommittees of the House Foreign Affairs Committee Monday called joint hearings to look into reports that United Nations organizations keep $1.4 billion of surplus funds in bank accounts often paying little or no interest.

At the same time, the United Nations and the State Department, in seperate press conferences held in New York and Washington, attacked the reports.

The United Nations, speaking only for itself and not the other organizations in the U.N. system, said it has no "bonanza waiting to be spent" and has been "teetering every day on the verge of bankruptcy."

U.N. officials suggested privately, however, that some U.N. affiliates named in the stories were ripe for investigation.

Gas rioting quelled

PANAMA CITY (AP) — National guard soldiers firing shotguns and tear gas chased anti-government rioters into the U.S. Panama Canal Zone today, quelling violence in which a bus driver was beaten to death and another man was severely injured by the runaway bus.

Dozens of government vehicles were destroyed as students and other protestors rampaged in the streets of Panama City Monday, continuing agitation against a 30-per-cent increase in gasoline prices June 8 that raised the cost to $1.36 a gallon.

The rioters ripped out parking meters, smashed telephone booths and looted downtown stores.

Officials said the 33-year-old bus driver was pulled from a government bus, stoned and beaten to death and his bus set afire. They said as the bus careered down the street out of control, it ran over a 78-year-old man who was taken to hospital.

U.S. pooh-poohs prescription pot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government said Monday it will not relax controls over marijuana and its active ingredient, synthetic THC, to permit their use under prescription by physicians.

The decision by Peter Bensinger, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, came as no surprise since Secretary Joseph Califano of the health, education and welfare department recommended less than two weeks ago that the government's most stringent controls be maintained on marijuana and THC.

The decision leaves the drugs in the same category as LSD and heroin.

An advisory group at the Food and Drug Administration had recommended easing the controls to allow marijuana and THC to be used under the supervision of physicians, placing them in the same category as morphine and cocaine.

Bensinger said his decision is based on "a thorough scientific and medical evaluation" as well as Califano's recommendation. Bensinger rejected a petition by the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, which had sought an easing of the controls.

The organization contended that marijuana might be of use medically in alleviating the eye disease glaucoma and easing nausea for cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy treatment.

Bensinger said marijuana has "a high abuse potential" and is not generally accepted to be safe for use under medical supervision. He said the drugs might be used for research under regulations administered by the Food and Drug Administration.

Twelve states have legalized marijuana use for some medical purposes in the last 18 months. But the states must obtain federal approval to acquire marijuana and experiment with it. The states are Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

THC stands for tetrahydrocannabinol and is the active ingredient in marijuana that causes euphoria.

Bensinger said the latest national survey on drug abuse reported that 43 million Americans, or one in four over the age of 12, had used marijuana or hashish, which is considered a form of marijuana by early 1977.

Planes disperse Mexican oil spill

CIUDAD DEL CARMEN, Mexico (UPI) — Aerial inspection of five oil slicks blanketing more than 1,600 square kilometres of the Gulf of Mexico indicated that chemicals dropped from planes are helping to break up the spilled oil.

The Mexican government oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos said Monday that two more planes have been added to a fleet of 22 boats and aircraft working to disperse the oil gushing from a runaway well that blew out June 3.

Houston oil well troubleshooter Paul "Red" Adair returned to Ciudad del Carmen from Houston Monday aboard a private jet and prepared for a final try, expected Wednesday or Thursday, to shut off the well, located 67 kilometres north of the coastal city of Carmen.

Adair has been using American-made remote-control television cameras and a two-man submarine to examine the valve at the mouth of the well, crippled 16 days ago in a drilling accident.

The well Ixtoc I has already poured 480,000 barrels of crude into the Bay of Campeche. Of the 30,000 barrels a day pouring out of the well, half is burning up in a fire still raging over the well and 5,000 more barrels are evaporating into the atmosphere.

CLEANUP CONTINUES in Millinocket, Me., as wildlife wardens and state forest personnel are in the process of unloading 800 gallons of the pesticide Sevin from partially-submerged C-54 aircraft. Iran, Iraq clash seen TEHRAN (UPI) — An Iranian government minister warned Monday that neighboring Iraq is preparing a military attack with funding from generals who served the deposed shah.

Iranian newspapers charged Iraq — whose relations with Tehran are at an all-time low — had arrested 3,000 dissidents, including Moslem clergymen.

Sadeq Tabatabai, undersecretary of the interior ministry, told the Ettelaat newspaper Monday the deposed shah's generals were funding a military operation with support from Iraq to cause a border confrontation with Iran's armed forces.

Iranian Air Force jets — all U.S made — roared over Tehran before noon Monday in a rare display of air power apparently designed to warn Baghdad against further military provocations.

But chief government spokesman Abbas Amir-Entezam denied that tanks had been dispatched to the Iran-Iraq border in Khuzestan province. Lt. Gen. Nasser Farbod, chief of the armed forces staff, also denied concentration of Iranian armed forces near Iraq's border. The denials were issued in response to newspaper queries.

Thorpe accuser called 'parasite'

LONDON (Reuter) — The judge in the Jeremy Thorpe murder conspiracy trial Monday called the chief prosecution witness a parasite and a crook.

The judge, Sir Joseph Cantley, 68, summing up what he described as "a rather bizarre, surprising case," also referred to another important prosecution witness as "a humbug."

Thorpe, 50, former Liberal party leader, is accused with three others of plotting a bungled attempt to murder Norman Scott, who claims he was Thorpe's homosexual lover.

Sir Joseph said Scott had admitted in the witness stand to telling amazing lies in the past, to living with a rich homosexual and fraudulently pledging other people's credit.

"He is a crook," the judge told the jury. "He is a fraud. He is a sponger. He is a whiner. He is a parasite. But, of course, he could still be telling the truth. It is a question of belief."

The judge's summing up lasted all day and will continue today. Later this week, the jury of 12 will retire to consider its verdict. Sir Joseph said they should not feel overwhelmed by their task.

He gave his assessment of another key witness, former Liberal MP Peter Bessell, describing him as "a humbug" — defined by the Oxford dictionary to mean a fraud, an imposter.

Thorpe is also accused of inciting others to murder Norman Scott, a former male model whom he befriended in the early 1960s.

The politician's lawyer has said Thorpe had homosexual tendencies but has strongly denied that he had homosexual relations with Scott.

Economic aims too high, Hua confesses

By JAY MATHEWS

HONG KONG (WP) — Chinese Communist Party Chairman Hua guofeng confessed Monday that some of his economic goals had not been "prudent enough" and announced a three-year program to readjust the ailing Chinese economy.

In his wide-ranging government report to open the National People's Congress in Peking, Hua also derided the Soviet Union for the strategic arms limitation treaty (SALT) signed Monday with the United States. He said SALT "could in no way check the arms race" and challenged the Soviets to back their recent conciliatory words about China with real deeds.

Despite his reference to economic troubles, Hua appeared to be trying to defend the three-year record of his administration since Chairman Mao Tse-tung died in 1976. Hua acknowlegded he had had to overcome "unending political turmoil and splits" and that farming, transportation, communications, textiles, coal, oil, electric power and light industry were all "lagging behind what was required." But he insisted that "China has not had such a good and flourishing economic situation as a whole in the past 10 years and more," according to a summary of the speech released by the New China News Agency.

The summary did not mention several economic targets Hua put forth at the last meeting of the Congress, China's partliament, in February, 1978, including goals of 400 million metric tons of grain and 60 million tons of steel by 1985. Whether Hua officially lowered those targets, which foreign economists have called unrealistic, will apparently not be known until the text of his report is formally approved and released by the Congress.

Hua's short confession of error was the only part of the news agency's economic summary in which he was directly quoted, an apparent sign of the importance and delicacy of the matter. The summary said his administration had discovered that the harm done by political turmoil in the previous 10 years could not be eliminated quickly.

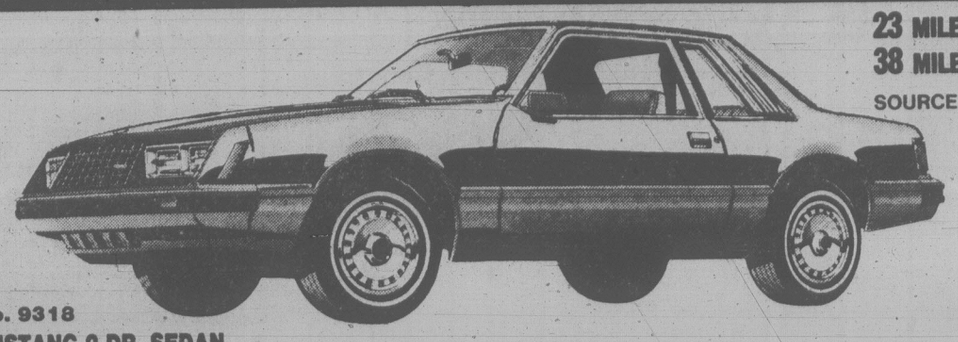

Hua buttressed his claims of economic progress with a long list of specific production figures, something Chinese leaders in the past have usually not provided in their speeches. He said that total grain output in 1978 was nearly 305 million tons, up 7.8 per cent, and that gross value of industrial output had increased 13.5 per cent in 1978. In the last two years, he said, steel output had gone to 31.8 million tons, up 55.3 per cent, coal to 618 million tons, up 28 per cent, crude oil to 104 million tons, up 19.5 per cent, and electricity to 256 billion kilowatt hours, up 26 per cent.

He said housing space had increased 33 per cent in 1978 and that "positive results were achieved in the last two years in importing up-to-date technologies and making use of foreign funds."

Analysts here said the speech appeared to endorse continued buying and borrowing abroad, including in the United States. But some experts who have analyzed province-by-province production figures said they thought some of Hua's totals were exaggerated. One analyst estimated the figure for coal production was at least 70 million tons too high, a not uncommon complaint about official Chinese economic statistices over the last 20 years.

Gas runs short in U.S. Midwest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline remained in storage tanks in Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island and wasn't delivered to Skelly service stations in 16 midwestern states as independent truckers turned their anger on U.S. fuel suppliers.

Gasoline shipments to some Minnesota towns were nearly cut off — four of seven gasoline stations in St. Peter said they were out of gas for June.

And in Oklahoma, judges ordered truckers to stop blocking an Oklahoma City truck stop and a Sun Oil refinery in Tulsa.

While the truckers tightened their squeeze on terminals, their leaders met in Washington with government officials to air owner-operator grievances: rising fuel prices, the 88-kilometre-an-hour speed limit and varied state limits on the size of their loads.

"We're going to do what we can to accommodate the concerns that you have," presidential adviser Stuart Eizenstat told representatives of the drivers coalition.

But the truckers said they were not satisfied, and spokesman William Hill urged the 100,000 owner-operators in the U.S. to take "an extended vacation" beginning at midnight Wednesday night.

Hill, chairman of the National Independent Truckers Unity Committee, predicted as many as 20,000 will heed the call. And there was vivid evidence that many shared his concerns:

Meanwhile, there was new violence. In Tennessee, a driver was injured by sniper fire and a rig went up in flames.

There were these other developments:

—Protesters blocked a loading dock at a Getty refinery in El Dorado, Kan., halting delivery of 500,000 gallons of gasoline to Skelly stations in 16 states.

—About 100,000 gallons of fuel scheduled for delivery to gasoline stations in the Northeast sat at Gulf Oil Co.'s terminal in East Providence, R.I., when truckers staged a peaceful protest.

—Protesters picketing five distribution centres in New Jersey stopped delivery of about two million gallons of fuel, a spokesman for the group claimed.

—Roads to six Connecticut fuel terminals were blocked in an effort to prevent deliveries from one of the state's three major oil ports.

U.S. top court curbs Laetrile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Laetrile. . . a vitamin, a drug or a food?

A cancer preventive, cancer cure, pain reliever?

A magic elixir, snakeoil, another "fountain of youth" — or a possibly harmful — remedy?

Depending on how it's viewed, Laetrile is all or none of these.

Used underground for years, thousands of supporters claim the substance, derived from the pits of peaches and apricots, can cure and even prevent cancer.

The U.S. government, however, says Laetrile is just another hoax on cancer victims which should be kept off the market so they can receive accepted medical treatment.

The confrontation between those two views led to a U.S. Supreme Court ruling Monday that is a victory for the government's position but leaves Laetrile users with at least a temporary avenue to obtain the substance.

A unanimous court held Laetrile was covered by the safety and effectiveness requirements of the federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

The ruling overturned a 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision to allow patients certified as terminally ill by their doctors to receive Laetrile injections.

But the high court's decision apparently does not disturb — at least for now — the court's injunction allowing the use of liquid Laetrile.

This was little solace to Laetrile proponents who filed suit in 1975 to halt government interference with their use of the substance.

"My reaction is that they (the justices) have decided that the greed for the dollar is greater than the value of human life, that 75,000 North Americans are consigned to a long, lingering, suffering death," said Glen Rutherford, 62, who has been taking Laetrile treatments since he was diagnosed to have intestinal cancer in 1971.

"No one has the right to tell anyone by what methods or modalities he has to have with which to die. Only my creator has that right to tell me," said Rutherford, a manufacturers' representative from Conway Springs, Kan.

"I will have to violate the law. I will get my Laetrile one way or another," said Rutherford, who claims the substance has saved his life.

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Donald Kennedy took a different view, saying the decision indicated "all patients including the terminally ill are entitled to equal protection."

The case now returns to the Denver appeals court to consider whether the government's ban violates the constitutional rights of those who want to use Laetrile.

10.3 per cent

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's annual inflation rate rose to 10.3 per cent in May, up from 10.1 per cent in April, the goverment's retail price index shows. It was the seventh consecutive monthly increase in the inflation rate.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Clematis wilt woes can be cured

GARDENING
Hilda Beastall

Clematis vines planted in spring often make three or four feet of growth then suddenly wilt, the growth gradually browning and eventually drying up.

This has happened so long it has become a controversial subject much debated by professional gardeners and horticultural writers without any definite cause being found.

The condition is called clematis wilt, believed by some to be a bacterial disease for which many controls have been tried but all proved ineffective.

For several decades it was said to be limited to plants under two years old, therefore all nurserymen offered for sale only plants in their third year. Even these would die back in some gardens.

Writing in the late 1920s, A. G. Jackman, the hybridizer of the famous Jackmani group of clematis, listed seven reasons to which various English and European clematis growers attributed the cause.

These were late spring frosts, eelworms, bursting cells through too much water, too rich a soil causing more growth than the root system could handle, slugs, careless use of garden implements damaging the stems, and faulty grafting.

He analyzed each of these supposed causes, giving examples of plants in his own greenhouses and nursery which had not died back under similar conditions of insects, weather, or soil. He also noted that the wild starts from the tip of the growths, whereas it would start from the grafting point if the graft was at fault.

Summing up, Jackman stressed the importance of careful planting. The clematis grows well in a variety of soils where drainage is good. Faulty planting, in Jackman's opinion, is the cause of many clematis problems.

The planting hole should be dug two feet square and two feet deep, breaking up the subsoil and holding it open for drainage with coarse compost or old manure. The removed soil is mixed with old manure or compost and a little hydrated lime added.

The plant is carefully removed from its container and drainage crocks taken from among the roots without causing injury. It should be placed in the planting hole so that the top of the root ball is at least two inches below soil level. This allows roots to grow from the stems above the graft, eventually forming a larger and stronger root system than is possible from the grafted root stock. It also encourages the plant to send up strong shoots from below soil level. Annual dressing with compost or old manure maintains vigor.

Having grown clematis plants for sale, I add my own experiences. It was quite common for newly planted clematises to die back the first year as soon as hot weather arrived. This would happen to plants two years old or younger, and regardless of being grafted or on their own roots. But the roots would survive and put up strong growths the following year and make sturdy plants.

My advice to customers was not to forget the roots of plants which wilted. Keep the soil reasonably moist throughout the rest of the summer; moist, but not saturated with water. Plant on an east or west facing wall where there is less heat than on a south wall. Always provide shade for the lower foot of stems and over the root area.

Those who followed these directions for planting and care, including myself, have magnificent plants today even though they suffered die-back the first (and sometimes the second) year after planting.

Hydro 'teaches' energy

A B.C. Hydro-funded energy conservation program was approved for use in Greater Victoria School District Monday.

Trustees questioned the agency's energy convervation performance but in the end favored it over another prepared by an environmental group.

Trustee Martin Levin accused Hydro of being one of the "most profligate" abusers of energy in the province" but admitted a program prepared by Citizens Association to Save the Environment (CASE) has some problems.

CASE recommended an energy audio-visual program, but the board's administration said provincial social studies and science curriculums are being changed by the education ministry and may not be suited to the program.

No funds are available to cover the $22,000 cost of the CASE project, which is not adequate to fill district needs, curriculum superintendent Bernie Chandler said.

He recommended the board wait for the $90,000 Hydro-sponsored course being developed by B.C. teachers, the education ministry, the energy transport and communications ministry and the B.C. School Trustees Association.

PCs rubberstamp boost in job-training allowances

OTTAWA (CP) — In response to public protests, the federal government plans to restore partially job-training allowances that were heavily cut last fall.

The basic weekly-living allowance for dependent trainees that was cut to $10 from $45 will be increased to $20, an employment department spokesman said Monday.

In addition, some single parents will be eligible for an extra $10-per-child allowance. The condition is that the parent otherwise could not afford to take training.

Both changes, to come into effect Aug. 20, come on the heels of two other increases that were quietly implemented shortly after the general election last month.

One increased the $10 allowance to $60 for persons on short-term compulsory apprenticeship training. The other fully restored to $45 from $38 the job-training allowance granted trainees in the Yukon and Northwest Territories who are living away from home.

Although the new rates are to be officially announced soon by the new Progressive Conservative government, the employment department spokesman said they were initiated by the former Liberal government.

Public protests, mainly from women's rights groups, students and labor groups, had prompted the department to take a second look at the cuts. Some cases of hardship were found.

The allowances are paid by the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission under the 1967 Adult Occupational Training Act to students enrolled in courses at community colleges, technical and vocational institutions and trade schools.

The basic $20 weekly allowance applies to single students living at home and married students with working spouses.

Basic weekly rates for others are to remain unchanged from the rates set by the Liberal government last fall during a spending restraint program.

Those rates were $60, down from $79 for one person; $80, down from $90 for a person with one dependent; $95, down from $97 for a person with two dependents; $110, up from $103 for a person with three dependents; $125, up from $109 for a person with four or more dependents.

The most persistent protests about the cuts had come from women's rights groups which said the cuts further fortified the financial dependence of married women and created greater financial strains on unmarried women, especially single parents.

The cuts had been criticized by Conservative and New Democratic Party politicians in Parliament and during the election campaign.

Noose debate

LONDON (AP) — The Commons will soon debate proposals for a return to the death penalty in Britain, an official of the new Conservative government says.

Greenpeace to sue U.S. branch

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The Vancouver-born Greenpeace Foundation has launched its latest battle — against itself.

The environmental group, charging some of its American members are more concerned with protecting their own jobs than either seals or whales, said Monday it will file suit against its San Francisco office for recovery of more than $1 million in funds and exclusive rights to the Greenpeace name.

Dr. Patrick Moore, president of the 60,000-member organization founded in 1969, said at a news conference the funds have been diverted from the "legitimate" head office in Vancouver to expand the American bureaucracy.

But Ed Chavies, a director of the San Francisco office, said later "the Greenpeace Foundation of America categorically denies that it has ever had any obligation to forward funds to Greenpeace in Vancouver and that they are the owner of the name Greenpeace here."

Chavies said the U.S. group is "dismayed that Greenpeace in Vancouver would divert its funds which were donated for environmental purposes to unfounded and wasteful litigation expenses.

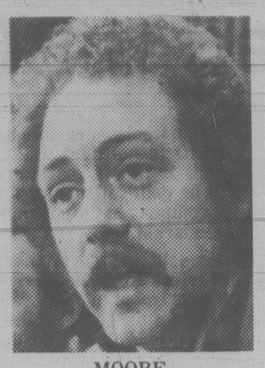

"Such an attitude by Greenpeace in Vancouver to control other groups and acquire their funds can only have a detrimental affect on the environmental movement."

Moore said the San Francisco office has sabotaged Greenpeace plans to send a ship out to the Pribilof Islands to protest the United States' seal hunt which starts Friday.

He said a complaint alleging misappropriation of funds and misuse of the Greenpeace trademark would be filed in the California district of the U.S. federal court in the next week.

Moore accused the San Francisco office of refusing take on its own government on difficult environmental issues involving U.S. interests.

"Obviously they're more concerned with protecting their own jobs than either the whales or the seals," Moore said.

Labatt profit tumbles $11M

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Profits of John Labatt Ltd. fell more than $11 million in the year ending April 30, blamed on strikes in Western Canada and losses from a Brazilian brewery.

In a report to shareholders, the company said the factors that hurt profits last year were unusual. The company was optimistic that it was now on the way "to a return to earlier growth trends."

Labatt's earnings for the year were $22,466,000 or $1.71 a share, compared with $33,895,000 or $2.53 a share.

In the fourth quarter, its profits fell to $5,082,000 compared with $8,909,000 in the same quarter a year ago. Labatt's blamed the slump on its continuing problems with lower earnings in the brewery operations.

Its consumer products division, which included the Laura Secord chain of candy stores, had profits of $15,966,000 compared with $7,749,000 a year ago.

The agriproducts group, which includes Ogilvie flour, reported profits of $19,324,000 compared with $11,984,000 in the previous year.

But the company said it is still reeling from the brewery work stoppages last year in Manitoba, Alberta and B.C.

Labatt's estimates the strike cost it $7 million or 49 cents a share in the first half alone, adding that "the disruption to Western markets continued throughout the year."

Losses arising from its interests in Skol-Caracu, its Brazilian subsidiary, increased. Labatt's share of Skol losses for the year was $4,190,000 compared with earnings of $755,000 in the previous year.

Gov't to hear NEW appeal

PENTICTON (CP) — The provincial cabinet has set July 13 to hear an appeal against a ruling by the provincial pollution control board allowing the city of Penticton to discharge more effluent into Skaha Lake.

C. E. Emery, chairman of the No Effluent Wanted (NEW) organization which is opposing the city's plans, said Monday he has been advised a committee of three to five ministers will hear the appeal.

Stock promoter jailed for tax fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stock promoter James Hill, 45, of Richmond, the central figure in a 1968 shooting in Vancouver, was sentenced Monday in county court to one year in jail for income tax evasion.

Hill was convicted March 30 for failing to pay nearly $135,000 in taxes on income of more than $288,000 in 1973—74.

He was also sentenced to six months concurrent for not including securities valued at $9,000 in a statement of assets and liabilities.

Alcohol blamed in Burns Lake deaths

BURNS LAKE (CP) — Alcohol and excessive speed have been cited as factors in the death of five people who were killed in a car accident during the Victoria Day weekend.

In his report, Coroner Gin Saul says the blood alcohol reading of the driver of the car was .19, more than twice the legal limit.

Five Burns Lake youths, aged between 18 and 20, died early May 20 when their car missed a turn on Highway 16 near this community about 220 kilometres west of Prince George.

Adams Lab workers win support

The Telecommunications Workers Union has thrown its support behind employees of Adams Laboratories who are on strike for a first agreement.

Delegates at a Vancouver convention expressed "shock and disgust at actions of the RCMP in harassing working people fighting for their rights."

The new $500,000 Kwakiutl Museum at Cape Mudge on Quadra Island will feature valuable native relics confiscated at the turn of the century by the federal government.

The museum will be officially opened June 29. William Taylor, director of the National Museum, will be among federal officials attending the ceremonies.

The government's action in seizing the relics, supported at the time by the provincial government, was interpreted by coastal Indians as an attempt to destroy their culture.

Native dances were also banned and Indian children at residential schools were often forbidden to speak their lanquage.

This year the National Museum decided that the relics rightfully belonged to the native people of B.C.

The 7,000-square foot museum includes a dispay explaining the kinship and family histories of the Kwakiutl people, along with works by Haida artist Bill Reid.

Depot plot foiled

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — Five Lebanese, an Algerian and a West German have been charged with plotting to blow up West Berlin's largest fuel depot. Justice department authorities said the accused either belong to the Palestine Liberation Organization or have close contacts with it.

Railwest hassles still plague Socreds, NDP

One of the longest-standing feuds between the Socreds and the NDP dates back to before the 1975 election campaign and it still won't die.

The argument revolves around whether B.C. should ever have been in the railway car building business.

The NDP, through government-controlled B.C. Rail, built the Railwest rail car building plant in Squamish during Dave Barrett's tenure as premier.

When the Socreds came to power in 1975, one their first moves was to close the plant, saying it was a waste of money.

The NDP has never forgiven the Socreds. They claim the plant is needed and the Socred shutdown was nothing more than an anti-NDP vendatta by the free-enterprisers.

Barrett now is trying to get Economic Development Minister Don Phillips to admit the plant closure was a mistake.

"Not only is B.C. Rail short some 1,100 cars, but railroads throughout North America are all suffering car shortages," Barrett said.

He suggested a rail car building plant would be a booming business today.

Nonsense, says Phillips.

"Railwest could never build cars at a competitive price. And the recent shortage was a short-term one caused by extreme weather conditions throughout Eastern Canada and the U.S. last winter," the minister claims.

Phillips told the legislature that B.C. Rail is not buying any cars.

The rail company is, however, leasing 1,145 cars through long-term arrangements — a much cheaper move than buying them, he said.

Phillips said the short-term car shortage is over and that BCR has adequate number of cars to meet all customer requirements.

Support risked if BCRIC drops in value: Barrett

The Social Credit government will be forced to ensure that B.C. Resources Investment Corporation shares are worth at least $6 a share or risk losing voter support, NDP leader Dave Barrett said Monday.

"The Social Credit party has taken assets and transferred them to a number of people and they cannot politically allow those assets to drop in market values," said Barrett in an interview.

"So they (the Socreds) will be under pressure to ensure that BCRIC receives consideration that keeps it at that price or higher. Otherwise they risk losing political favor."

The government's offer of five free shares to every eligible resident of the province closed Friday. Those eligible also were able to order up to 5,000 extra shares at a cost of $6 each.

"The whole aura around BRCIC is political and it stands to reason that there will be political support for the company in the competitive market."

He said the government has already concentrated "the control of public assets bought for the people of B.C. by the people of B.C. into the hands of 60,000 people who bought shares."

Some members of the NDP caucus have applied for shares, he said.

Barrett earlier said that MLAs owning shares would be in a conflict-of-interest position. He said Monday that only cabinet ministers making decisions would certainly be in such a position.

The NDP said Monday it will present amendments to legislation to try to ensure that the corporation is responsive to the people of the province and that it never falls into foreign control.

The proposed changes include a provision that would give five shares to every baby born in the province. A party spokesman said the two million shares left over after the free-share distribution could be put into a pool from which every new B.C. baby could be given shares for the next eight to 10 years.

Other changes proposed by the NDP would assure that every shareholder has a vote at the corporation's annual meetings rather than just those who own 100 or more shares.

The NDP also proposes that:

—An annual meeting be held each year;

—No person or corporation could own more than one per cent of the outstanding shares;

—No foreign control by proxy or other manner be permitted;

—The board of directors be Canadian citizens living in B.C.;

—Remuneration of senior staff be made public. The NDP has been unable to find out how much BCRIC president David Helliwell is making but believes it is more than $100,000 a year.

Cabinet pair split over uranium

Two cabinet ministers differed Monday on the question of placing a partial moratorium on uranium exploration while a provincial royal commission completes its studies on the broader future of uranium mining in the province.

Such a recommendation is expected from the royal commission and the cabinet will consider approving it, said Environment Minister Rafe Mair. There is no need to curb exploration, Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said in a separate statement.

Mair said he does not oppose surface exploration for the mineral, but thinks drilling should be suspended while the inquiry proceeds.

"My inclination is that we should look at stopping what I call disruptive exploration — that is when you actually disrupt the soil and the ore," he said.

"I don't mean such things as geiger counters and staking and so on."

Hewitt said in an interview that all exploration should be allowed to proceed.

The energy minister said his staff monitors all exploration now under way and that after each operation is complete "the companies are required to cement the hole and clean up the site.

"The exposure to or risk of low-level radiation from exploration is minimal if non-existant. The monitoring we have done shows it doesn't create any health hazard."

The federal government has already issued permits to several mining companies for surface exploration and the provincial government has the authority to grant permits for drilling.

Election Act violated?

NDP leader Dave Barrett accused Finance Minister Evan Wolfe Monday of violating the Provincial Elections Act by promising that contributions to political parties would be made tax deductible retroactively.

Barrett challenged Wolfe to withdraw the bill currently before the legislature and take the matter to court.

"There is no doubt in my mind that you have violated the law, if not in the letter, then at least in spirit."

Barrett said that if the previous NDP government had made the same promise, it would have been accused of political bribery.

"This government will say anything, do anything to get elected and to influence the voters."

Outside the legislature, Wolfe said he has no intention of pulling back the bill.

Earlier in the house, Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) accused the government of bribery because the voters were told if they re-elected and financed Social Credit, donations to political parties would be tax deductible effective April 2 and not when the bill becomes law.

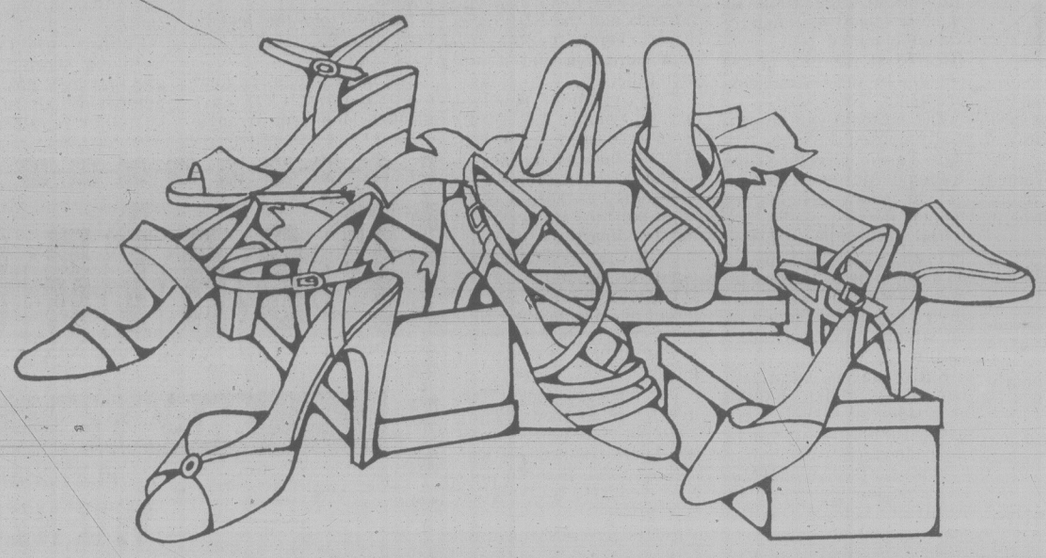

Energy Minister Jim Hewitt said an amendment proposed by the NDP which would make the effective date June 8 was "pretty cheap and shoddy." He said this would mean that all the people in B.C. are not being treated equally.

Norm Levi (NDP — Mallairdville-Coquitlam) noted the change was not included in the first budget speech presented April 2.

He said it was mentioned afterwards almost as if Premier Bill Bennett had an afterthought, decided to call an election and wanted to offer the deduction as a bonus to his supporters.

"He was in trouble and needed a boost for his supporters. That's why that was brought in."

Arabs pull plug on Canada

Times News Services

The Arab Monetary Fund (AMF) has stopped all dealings with Canada because of its plan to move the Canadian embassy to Jerusalem from Tel Aviv, the fund chairman announced today in Bahrain, capital of the United Arab Emirates.

"No more deposits will be placed with Canadian banks, whether they are off-shore banks in Bahrain, on the Euro-market or anywhere else," Jawad Hashem told Reuters news agency by telephone.

The decision was blamed for pushing the Canadian dollar below the 85-cent U.S. level on New York money markets today.

The Canadian dollar opened at 84.85 cents U.S., rallied to 84.96 on a small burst of commercial buying in mid-morning trading, and steadied at the same level by noon. Monday's close was 85.25.

The dollar had beeen maintaining a fairly steady level since the May 22 election, only dropping below 85 cents U.S. after the release of poor merchandise trade figures at the beginning of the month.

Hashem said the AMF, an Arab League body, will have no foreign-exchange dealings with Canadian financial institutions.

There will be no trading in Canadian bonds or bonds issued through Canadian banks, he added.

"This is a management decision, effective today," he said.

Hashem said he withdrew all AMF funds before making the decision public.

Hashem delined to reveal the amount of AMF investments.

"This is secret," he said. "But with $1-billion capital you can well imagine the extent of our dealings."

Earlier this month, nine Arab states warned the new Progressive Conservative government of Prime Minister Clark against implementing his election pledge to move the embassy.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald has said there is no timetable or deadline for the move and the government will consider all aspects of the question before acting.

There are three Canadian banks in Dubai, the second-richest state in the United Arab Emirates.

It's summertime . . . with kids starting to drink

By ALAN JAY

VANCOUVER (UPC) — "I took a deep breath and lifted the razor. I slashed at both wrists several times and the blood was everywhere. I was crying and screaming at the same time. . .it was terrible."

Karen's quietly-spoken words seem incongruous in the peaceful, summer setting of a children's park in English Bay. The bright sunlight turns her curly blonde hair to gold, and unshed tears sparkle in her eyes as she described her seven attempts to kill herself by slashing her wrists.

"Life was one long, nightmare," she says, trying not to cry. "I was drinking anything I could find every chance I got, and I was getting drunk two and three times a week.

"It got so bad that I slashed my wrists over and over again. I didn't really want to die, I guess, because I never did a good job of it. I just wanted to know that somone cared about me."

The tears stream down her face as she shows me her wrists. They are laced with fine, white scars. When she put them there, Karen was 16 years old.

The nightmare began, she says, with harmless visits to the beach, friends' houses and the local park with her closest friends from school.

"Someone always brought along the beer, and although I didn't like it at first, I drank it because everyone else did," she says. "None of the girls had much money, but the boys had part-time jobs, so they were always able to afford to buy beer."

The drinking parties went on throughout the summer, but while most of her friends stayed sober, Karen got drunk. Soon, she was getting drunk two and three times a week, she recalls.

Most of the time, she managed to sneak home without her parents seeing her, she says, although her father "came on heavy" from time to time about her staying out late.

"But after a while, even he saw that I was getting drunk all the time," Karen recalls. "But then he had a drinking problem himself and drank more than I did. And my mother was too busy looking after him to bother about me."

Finally, she started staying out all night, and then for several days at a time. She slept at friends' homes "or wherever I passed out."

It was after this, in moments of screaming desperation, that she started slashing her wrists, she says.

In a voice choked with emotion, she describes how the nightmare ended and she took the first step in what she calls "the long road back" one morning when she looked in a mirror.

"I was in the bathroom, clinging to the door. I looked up - and there was this horror staring back at me from the mirror. I started to scream - and then the truth hit me," she says.

"'My God,' I told myself, 'I am an alcoholic. . .and I'm only 16 years old !'"

For Karen, it was the beginning of a two-year uphill battle to stop drinking and return her life to normal. She called Alcoholics Anonymous for help - "the first smart move I had made in a long time."

Today, Karen has conquered her drinking problem. She lives in a foster home and has a part-time job in a store. Her plans for the future include a return to school - "to catch up on those two lost years" - and a career which involves working with children. She has remained a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, attends meetings and works on a voluntary basis with teenagers fighting problems similar to her own.

Joan, the one person who didn't walk away from her during the nightmare years, is still a friend and Karen values her friendship highly. "She and I are now building a whole new relationship, and life is good these days," she says, smiling for the first time since the interview began.

One of these days, she says as she gathers up her things, she will try and repair the damaged relationship wth her parents and family, - "but that may take a while."

And she shrugs, somewhat sadly, as she turns and walks slowly away through the groups of noisy, playing children towards the beach.

Next month, Karen will be among the 1,800 delegates gathering in Vancouver for the 22nd International Conference of Young People in Alcoholics Anonymous.

She will take part in a key conference debate on "Young problem drinkers - where can they find help?"

Somoza battles for slum

MANAGUA (AP) — The forces of President Anastasio Somoza battled for Managua's slums today and tried to check a guerrilla army in southern Nicaragua, leaving the Sandinista rebels in control of major towns in the northwest part of the country.

The president said the national guard will fight until it crushes the rebels waging their second offensive in 10 months to end 42 years of Somoza family rule. But he conceded it will take longer than the two weeks he predicted more than a week ago.

Guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front on Monday completed their occupation of Leon, Nicaragua's second-largest city 88 kilometres north of Managua, and were reported by persons in Chinandega, Chichigalpa and Esteli to be holding most of those three other cities in the northwest.

The Sandinistas also said they were in control of Matagalpa, about 130 kilometres northeast of Managua, but there was no confirmation of this.

High-ranking government sources said the recapture of Leon "will have to wait for a while." They said the national guard, Somoza's 13,000-man army, is concentrating on recovering the slums in eastern Managua and on defeating a Sandinista force trying to capture the southern town of Riva to make it the rebels' provisional capital.

Heavy gunfire was heard in the capital late Monday from the slums to the east of Somoza's heavily fortified headquarters. Government planes strafed and fired rockets, and thick columns of black smoke rose in the eastern part of the city. Explosions in what appeared to be a chemical or paint warehouse sent flames and smoke skyward.

Police shoot prowler

One man was shot and a man and woman taken into custody after a Central Saanich police officer surprised three prowlers in a cleaning store in Brentwood late Monday night.

Central Saanich police chief Bob Miles said in a brief statement today the wounded man was taken to Victoria General Hospital.

The man's condition is not known but it is believed he wss hit in the chest by at least one of four bullets fired by an officer.

The man and a woman have been charged with breaking into Fay's Brentwood One-Hour Cleaning at 7183 West Saanich with intent to commit theft.

No other details were released but an employee of the cleaning store said an officer on patrol in the area shortly before midnight noticed a door at the back of the store had been broken and then spotted three persons inside.

She said when the officer challenged the trio to come out, one of the men held up an object which the officer took to be a weapon.

The officer told the man to drop the object and when he didn't the officer fired four shots.

It is not known how many bullets struck the man, but one was believed to have hit him in the chest.

The store employee said one of the bullets went through the store.

Health probe to begin even if Indian boycott

Health Minister Bob McClelland says a public inquiry into health care in Alert Bay will go ahead Wednesday in a more suitable location despite a planned boycott by Indian bands in the area.

"I'm concerned that the Indians will boycott the inquiry because the seven-member inquiry panel will not be able to do such a good job without them," McClelland said Monday.

He said it would not be wise to put off the inquiry as suggested by Harry Rankin, the Vancouver lawyer who will represent the Indians at the inquiry.

The Kwawkewlth Tribal Council, which represents 18 bands with 3,500 members north of Campbell River, said it would refuse to participate in the three-day inquiry as it is now constituted.

A spokesman said the Indians were appalled the seven-member public inquiry was to be held in the 15-person capacity administration offices of St. George's Hospital at Alert Bay, 200 miles north of Victoria.

The spokesman also said the Indians were "utterly dismayed" no effort was made by inquiry chairman Dr. Charles Ballam to officially notify the band of the hearing's terms of reference.

"A more suitable location will be provided for the inquiry so all members of the public can be adequately heard," said McClelland.

"I'll assure them of that. If the administration offices of the hospital are not big enough, then we will find a building that is."

Meanwhile, Ballam said he is)going to Alert Bay today to find a suitable location for the hearing.

The inquiry follows the death of Renee Smith, an 11-year-old Indian girl, who died Jan. 22 in St. George's Hospital five days after being given pain-killing pills to ease severe stomach aches.

A coroners' jury nearly two weeks ago found that Dr. Jack Pickup, the only doctor in the area, was negligent in the death and that health care in the community was substandard.

The girl died of severe general peritonitis, ruptured appendix and acute gangrenous appendicitis.

IWA walkouts hit Island sites

Nearly 1,500 forest industry employees in the Lake Cowichan area were off the job today as woodworkers began putting the heat on their negotiators to get a contract settlement.

Scattered illegal walkouts began last week and escalated Monday when several hundred were off the job protesting against the pace of negotiations.

Both union and company spokesmen agree that such walkouts are a traditional feature at this stage of the forest industry negotiations.

All today's walkouts were by Vancouver Island members of the International Woodworkers of America.

Pickets appeared on roads leading to logging sites and sawmills in the Lake Cowichan area and the workers refused to cross, shutting down about six operations.

About 100 loggers at MacMillan Bloedel's Northwest Bay division remained off the job today after walking out Monday.

An IWA spokesman said the picketing is not sanctioned by union officials.

He said the workers are getting tired of never having a new contract when the last one expires June 14.

"They want to get their money and start spending it," he said.

Meanwhile, an IWA spokesman in Vancouver said today that after a rough day Saturday, negotiations are now back on the track.

He said Forest Industrial Relations, bargaining agent for the companies, agreed to discuss improvements to the union pension plan.

The hang-up previously had been that the companies were not prepared to discuss such improvements until the IWA agreed to unify the union's pension plan with that of the two other forest industry unions — the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada.

Now, however, the spokesman said the companies have agreed to discuss improvements without the added condition.

The spokesman said the IWA is not totally opposed to unifying the plans but didn't want that as a condition for improving the IWA plan.

Europe allows DC-10s to fly

Times News Services

ZURICH — The first of Europe's 58 DC-10s began flying again today after European countries adopted new inspection and maintenance programs for the grounded jetliners.

But they still will not be allowed to land in the United States which grounded all DC-10s following last month's crash in Chicago.

The first back in the air was a DC-10 of the Dutch charter carrier Martinair. It flew to Palma de Majorca, the Spanish Mediterranean holiday island, shortly after midnight European time.

Swissair readied a DC-10 for a flight to Tel Aviv this afternoon, provided authority arrived in time from Athens for overflying Greek airspace.

Switzerland and the Netherlands were the first to give the go-ahead for resumption of flights Monday, followed today by France, Spain and the Nordic Civil Aviation Administration. The West German transport ministry said new certification is being issued for Lufthansa's 11 DC-10s later today.

Britain gave the green light to Laker Airways and British Caledonian and both said they will resume DC-10 flights Wednesday — Laker to Crete, British Caledonian to Nigeria.

Because DC-10s remain grounded in the United States, Laker still cannot use any of its six DC-10s for its cut-price flights to the U.S.

A Swissair spokesman said the company's nine DC-10's underwent a final round of checks during the night which cleared them for service.

France's leading private airline, UTA, said it would put three of its six DC-10s back in the air tonight to serve Africa, the Far East and the Pacific. The other three DC-10s serve the United States and cannot be flown until the lifting of the U.S. grounding order.

Spanish aviation officials said today that Iberia, the Spanish airline, can return its seven DC-10s to service any time it wants.

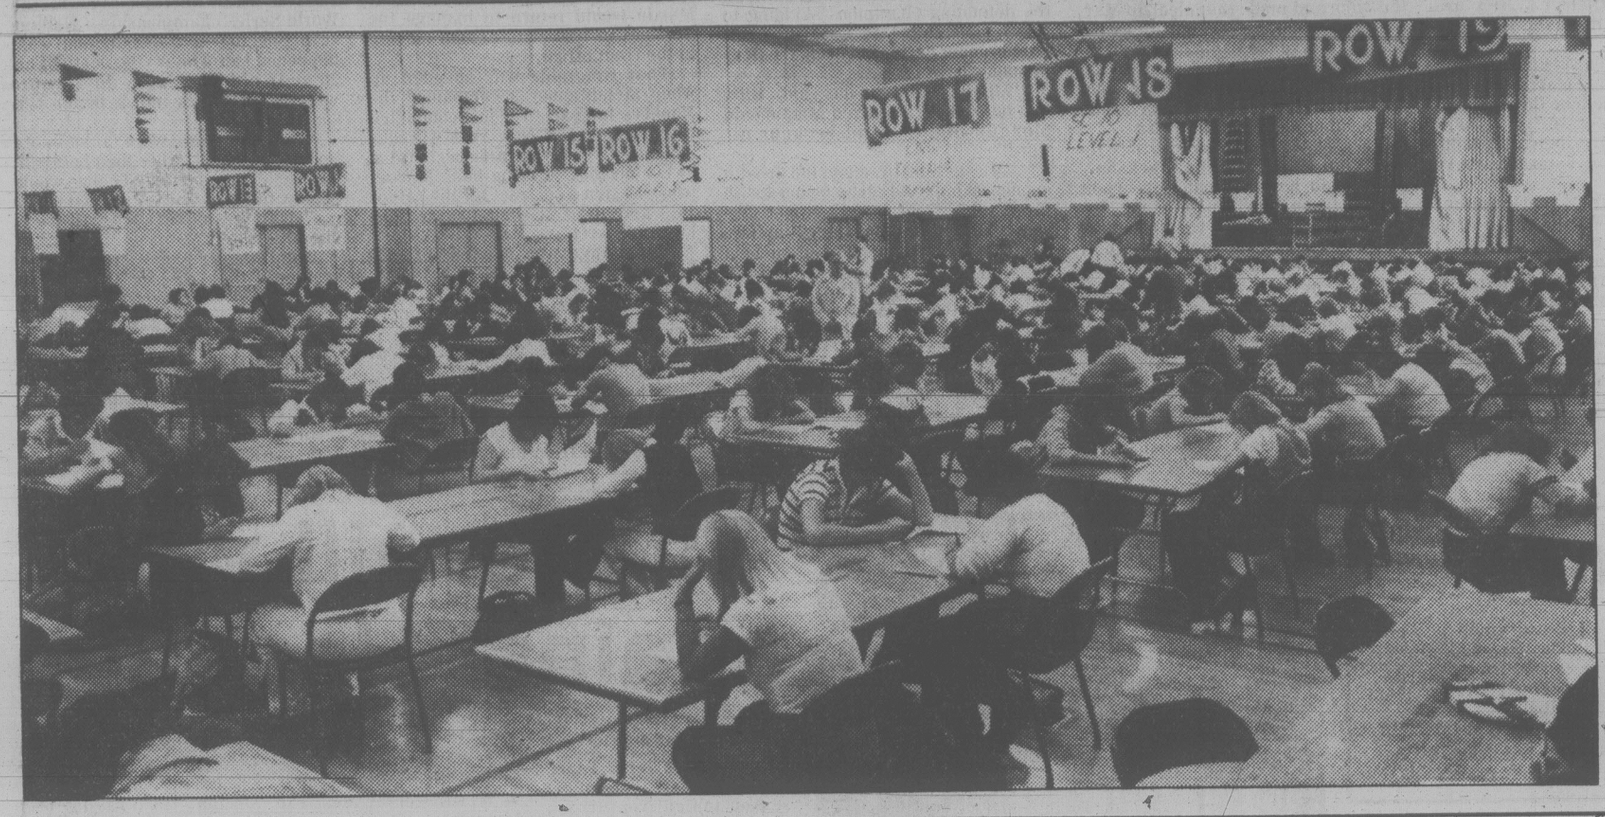

In Edmonton, Wardair Canada said it hopes its two DC-10s will be allowed to fly this week.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government said it will not allow Japan Air Lines (JAL) to resume DC-10 flights until the U.S. authorities rescind their grounding order.

Final exams are back!

For the first time in 10 years Lansdowne junior secondary school students are writing final examinations.

They filed into the school gymnasium Monday for the first finals of their lives and seem to be taking it well, principal Ted Curtis said today.

Curtis said Lansdowne is probably the only school in the district to have all Grades 8, 9, and 10 students sitting for finals in most subjects.

The school is holding finals all week and attendance hasn't been this high in June for a long time.

Although formal final exams have not been used regularly for at least a decade, Curtis said teachers made a decision earlier this year to bring them back.

"The pendulum has swung the other way. We will probably stay with it."

Bringing back exams is intended as a way to evaluate student performance and teacher effectiveness.

Curtis feels the experience will be valuable, particularly for those writing government scholarships or planning to go on to university where examinations are standard procedure.

TOWN TALK

Caramba! You think you have problems, Senor e Senora? They're nothing compared to what Sheila McHugh is facing.

On June 28, as many as 26 young Mexican students will arrive in Victoria to take part in a two-month summer exchange program.

Her problem is she's found homes for only six of the students. Homes for the other 20 are desperately needed, to put it mildly.

The students are participating in Intercambio International, a cultural exchange involving Canadian and Mexican students. The program runs from June 28 to Aug. 24.

The program, which is inter-denominational, was started by a Mexican priest, Fr. Placid, 25 years ago and Victoria's participation dates back 10 years.

Mrs. McHugh says she didn't quite expect the Mexican response to the program, and has been caught short in providing homes here.

All of the 20 students still looking for homes are boys aged 15.

Persons willing to host one or more of the youngsters, particularly if they have children in the same age group, are asked to contact her at 382-8106.

All that's required is to provide room and board . . . and some love.

Former Saanich policeman-turned poet, artist and publisher, John Adams, feels he has a solution for an emergency telephone number system for Greater Victoria residents. And, he says, it's as simple as ABCDEFG.

Adams' method involves arranging letter decals on the dial face of the phone in a pattern that corresponds to the local police number. For example a resident of Esquimalt where the police number is 385-1441 would place a decal of the letter A next to the number three, B next to the number eight, C next to five and so one.

He believes residents in times of an emergency would simply have to let their fingers follow the alphabet in calling for help.

He submitted his idea to the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee last month and was naturally hoping for words of support.

The committee thanked him and said his letter had been received and filed.

Those who watch closely the activities along the political corridors have noticed that NDP leader Dave Barrett, who always had a battle of the waistline, is even pudgier than usual of late.

Well, the porky politician has decided to do something about it, although he doesn't seem as committed as Health Minister Bob McClelland who dropped 50 excess pounds.

Barrett, who refuses to divulge his weight, says he picked up a few extra pounds while picking up extra votes on the election campaign.

So now he has embarked on another losing campaign — to lose those pounds he added on the hustings.

Three Victorians will try to get their names in the Guinness Book of World Records by crossing the Juan de Fuca Strait strictly on kite power.

Bernard Stewart, Barry Heibert and Shannon MacLeod will attempt the crossing Saturday, June 30, from Crescent Bay, Wash., to the Inner Harbor, a distance of about 60 k/m. If successful, it will be the longest water kite tow ever.

Aboard a Zodiac inflatable craft they will control a vertical column of up to 10 stunt kites, measuring two feet by six feet, which will provide the sole propulsion for boat and occupants.

The crossing is expected to take two to four hours depending on wind conditions.

The three kiters are trying to get local businessmen to sponsor their bid on a dollars-per-kilometre basis, with all proceeds going to the 1979 United Way campaign.

Picnics in the park are part of the North American lifestyle but a family picnic in Beacon Hill Park on Sunday will have a particular significance.

The principals will be Fred Oak, 69, of 377 Silica in Langford, and his cousin Fred C. Powell, 76, of Southall, England. This will be their first reunion in 65 years.

Oak's father, the late Frederick Albert Oak, was the first man to sell millwood in Victoria. His son and Powell met during the First World War when the elder Oak decided to return to England for a spell with his family.

Commission named to study methods

Esquimalt to split police, firemen

Esquimalt municipality decided Monday to separate police and firefighting roles and set up a commission to study how best to do it.

The recommendation to abandon the community's dual public safety force in favor of units with individual responsibility was made by Mayor Art Young at a closed council session.

Young said he does not want to second-guess the committee's findings, likely to be reached by fall.

However, the mayor earlier suggested that a separate fire department could come about through a full-time municipal force, a combined full-time/volunteer force, a joint arrangement with Greater Victoria fire departments or a contracted out arrangement.

Existing police force members get about $100 a month extra for doubling as firemen.

Besides the chief constable who is nominally fire chief as well, there is an inspector and six civilian employees in the department.

Young said Ald. James McEvay was named chairman of the council committee, with members Ald. Barry Gilbert, Ald. Larry Mann and police board members Jack Rutherford.

McEVAY

Their report is expected no later than November and will include numbers, cost and a schedule for phasing in a new arrangement.

Police union president Bill Wyatt said he hopes the union will take advantage of the opportunity to discuss the change.

"Separate forces has been a topic of salary negotiations since I've been involved (12 years) and went on years before that," Wyatt said.

In 1964 the union asked the B.C. Supreme Court to split the force, but the court ruled it had no jurisdiction because the two roles were covered by a collective agreement.

Wyatt said the union has worked out several alternatives and the members feel a workable firefighting force could consist of 16 men divided into a platoon system of four to a shift working 14-hour nights and 10-hour days.

Another proposal might be to phase in a new system over two or three years to ease the cost and shifting of personnel.

Young said the municipality will work with the union to avoid hardships which could occur in transferring duties.

An ad hoc arrangement providing fire protection through policemen or other municipal employees existed in Esquimalt up to 1955 when the dual role of police was recognized in the collective agreement.

A B.C. Police Commission task force recently reported to council on police department efficiency, leading aldermen to conclude that improvement in public safety coverage was needed.

Quiet bandit for Oak Bay

Oak Bay police are seeking a soft-spoken bandit who held up the Toronto-Dominion Bank at 2533 Estevan Monday and escaped with $1,200.

It was the first bank robbery in the municipality in 25 years.

Police said the man entered the bank at 11:05 a.m. and handed teller Nancy Holmes, 25, a brown paper bag on which was printed the message: "Put all your money in the bag quickly."

Police said when she looked up, the man pulled out a small black handgun from under a denim jean jacket he was wearing.

"Do you want it all?" Holmes asked

"All of it. Hundreds, fifties, all the bills. Hurry up," the bandit replied.

She stuffed the bills in the bag and the man walked out a side door and disappeared down a back alley.

Police said there was only one customer in the bank at the time. The customer and staff members were unaware of the robbery until after the bandit had left.

Police immediately set up patrols in the area and brought in a police dog team but the suspect escaped.

The last bank holdup in Oak Bay was in 1954 at the old Bank of Commerce on Oak Bay Avenue.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me what the D in D-Day stands for? M.H.

A. The D is an abbreviation for day. D-Day is the term for a secret date on which a military operation is to begin. The expression D-Day became current in the Second World War when it defined the dates set for Allied landings on enemy-held coasts. The most famous D-Day is June 6, 1944, when the Allies invaded Normandy.

Unions rally for jobs

Unemployed building trades union members held a rally at the Legislative Buildings today to put pressure on the provincial government for more job-creating measures.

Victoria carpenters union organizer Ken Rowell said in an interview some tradesmen have been out of work for two years now and there is no improvement in site.

During the winter the unemployment rate among carpenters was as high as 50 per cent and has only dropped to about 45 per cent now, Rowell said.

"We're trying to emphasize to the government that there is a need for a summer works program let alone a winter works program."

Four-storey hotel given initial okay

Construction of a new multi-million-dollar hotel in James Bay was approved in principle today by Victoria's land use and planning committee.

If, as expected, city council backs the recommendation, Kingsmount Holdings Ltd. could begin construction by September on Montreal Street across from Harbor Towers.

Kingsmount spokesman Mike Weston said the four-storey, 119-unit hotel will cost $4 to $5 million and will employ a staff of 125 when in full operation.

Architect Nick Bawlf said the building is designed with a turn-of-the-century look and it will be finished with cedar siding and a shake roof.

The Kingsmount representatives appeared before the planning committee because they said they had reached an impasse with council's Advisory Design Panel.

Bawlf said five weeks of meetings had failed to satisfy the design panel's reservations concerning the building's design and its siting on the block.

He urged the committee to approve the plans in principle so that Kingsmount could be assured it was heading in the right direction.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh pointed out, however, that "once you get an approval in principle the major commitment has been made . . . that will be the way that things fit together on the site."

Ald. Bob Wright agreed with that assessment and added it would be unusual for the committee to override the design panel.

Weston complained, however, that "we are sitting in limbo and we'd ask that we be given some guidelines."

On a motion by Ald. Bill McElroy the planning committee decided to advise council to direct the design panel to forget its objections to the building's siting, and to confine future recommendations to the building's design.

Wright supported the motion, saying he was delighted with the Kingsmount proposal because it retains three heritage houses — one of which is the Captain's Palace restaurant — on the block.

The hotel will face Quebec Street and the three houses will be left intact where they now stand facing Belleville.

Ald. John Hayes said the Kingsmount proposal was just about the best the city could hope for on that site.

But he added: "With three genuine heritage buildings in front and a pseudo-heritage building behind . . . it could look good, or it could look terrible."

Aldermen approve gliders

Hang-gliders should be allowed to continue jumping off the cliffs along Dallas Road, city council's parks committee agreed today.

The committee had been giving consideration to a police department request that the gliders be banned, but a submission by glider Ian Vantreight persuaded them otherwise.

Vantreight, representing the Hang-gliding Association of B.C., said the police had never discussed the situation with his group and were misinformed about the dangers of the sport.

$22,400 Hike for school study

Greater Victoria school board decided Monday to give its education commission a $22,400 budget increase.

The decision was fought by three trustees, who criticized the seven-member commission and its district-wide study on education needs.

Although the budget was originally set at $33,800, several proposed budget increases ranging from $10,200 to $22,400 have bounced back and forth between the board and its planning committee.

The increases were proposed by committee chairman Bernard Gillie, who said they were needed to pay for program evaluations by outside professionals.

Gillie, who receives a $2,000 monthly salary, also proposed honorariums for committee members now working as volunteers. That suggestion was rejected by the board.

Several trustees opposed the budget increase said the evaluations wouldn't be completed by Oct. 15, the date the commission is expected to hand in an interim report.

Since funds are guaranteed only until mid-October, starting outside projects is a way to keep the commission alive beyond that date, they suggested.

A motion by Trustee Peter Yorke to allow only outside studies that will be finished by October was defeated.

Trustee Glyn Williams said the board will have little control over costs incurred by the commission.

He said Gillie's part-time salary worked out to about $48,000 a year — almost as much as schools superintendent Allan Stables is making.

"I don't think we're getting the value for our dollar."

Trustee Susan Brice said proposals from outside evaluators wouldn't have as much impact as proposals made by people working inside the district.

Some of the studies recommended by the commission are probably already being done by the administration, she said.

However, the majority of trustees felt the outside evaluations necessary if the commission is to keep its independence.

Trustee John Young, the school board's representative on the commission, said questioning the commission's judgment is a delaying tactic designed to interfere with its work and undermine its ability.

He said Williams' calculation of Gillie's salary is inadequate because he works more than part-time hours.

5.75% for faculty at UVic

University of Victoria board of governors has granted faculty members a 5.75 per cent salary increase.

Faculty association president Dr. Samuel Scully said the raise is less than hoped for.

Scully said, however, the association realizes the board is under pressure from its major funding source, the provincial government, to keep costs down.

The board can unilaterally determine faculty salaries but usually considers proposals submitted by the association.

This year's increase means an assistant professor, at the bottom end of the tenure scale, will make $19,300 a year.
